Bridge to open in six months

State Secretary of Transportation visits site of closed bridge

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON/TEWKSBURY - Richard Davey, Massachusetts' Secretary of Transportation joined Representative Jim Miceli and a bevy of local officials from three towns at the Brown Street Bridge Friday to assess the damage to the flood-damaged bridge now closed for nearly two years. State officials aim to open the bridge, and thus a critical thruway for Tewksbury residents, in six months.

The narrow bridge was closed after damage from spring floods in 2010. Wilmington, Billerica and Tewksbury have struggled with resolving the issue as visions for the scope of the project differed in each town. Both Billerica and Wilmington jointly own the bridge - Nichols Street on the Wilmington side and

School candidates debate

What is a 21st century education anyway?

By Amanda Geldhof

WILMINGTON - Implementation of a 21st century education and standardized testing were at the forefront of the School Committee Candidates' Debate last week. Incumbent Mario Marchese, returning candidate Manny Mulas and newcomer Mary Jane (MJ) Byrnes faced some tough questions from the panel. The panel consisted of Les Masterson from the Wilmington Patch, Jayne Miller of the Wilmington Town Crier and Tom Zuppa of the Lowell Sun.

The first question out of the panel came from Masterson who asked what candidates believed was the most pressing need in the Wilmington Public Schools (WPS). All three candidates addressed different aspects of moving toward a more modern education system.

"I believe that technology is critical to the development of our students so that they can compete in the 21st century," Mulas said. "By having a strong foundation in the areas of technology we allow our students to compete in not only our towns but across the world."

He said WPS need to experiment with one-on-one education using technology, but stressed the importance of professional development for the teaching staff, which he said he feels the district could improve on.

Byrnes took a similar stance using technology, but she said WPS should start the technologically based teaching earlier.

"It is imperative that our lower schools have that technological ability so that kids coming from those schools can access the technology that we hope to see in the middle school and throughout the high school," Byrnes said.

SAT vs Town Meeting

Parents irate at poor planning

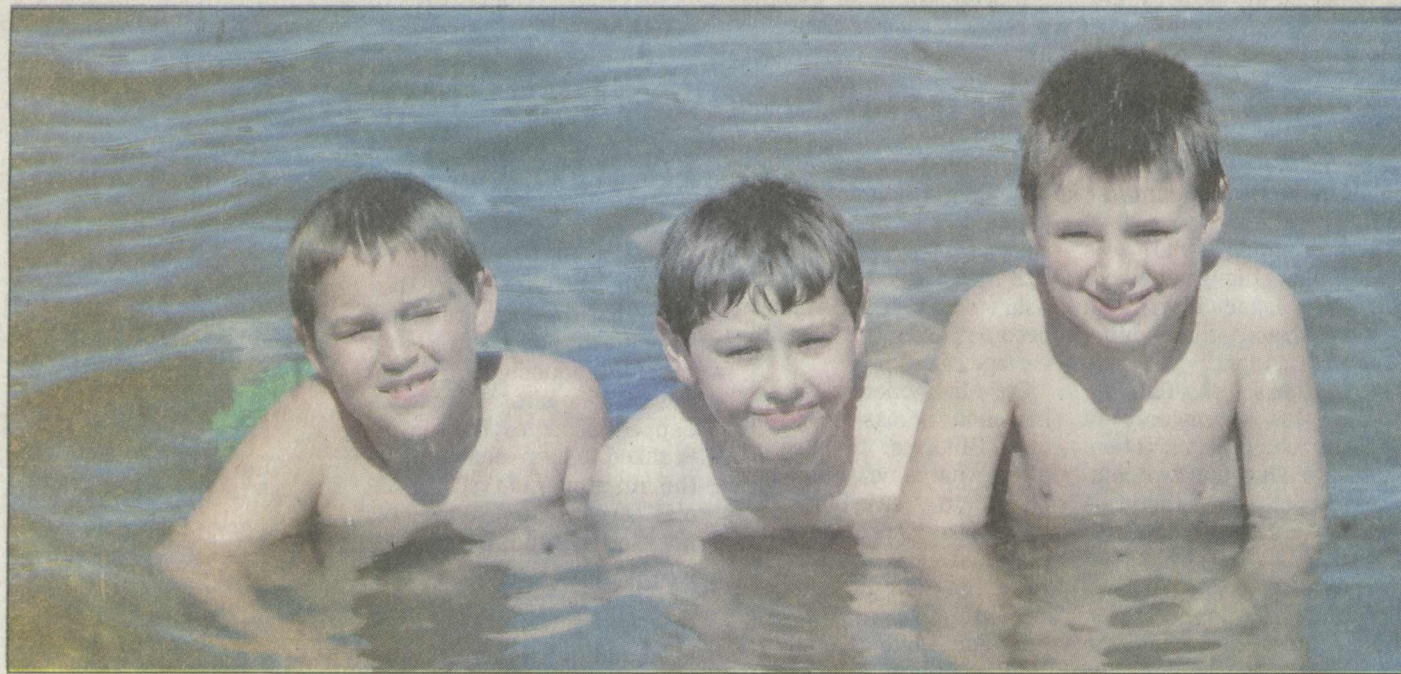

By AMANDA GELDHOF

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington High School gym was the selected location for two events on Saturday, May 5: SAT and PSAT testing and the Annual Town Meeting, creating a scheduling conflict unnoticed for months. Town Meeting is scheduled, by bylaw, always for the first Saturday following the annual Town Election. Specific dates are published annually on calendars printed every spring.

High School Principal Eric Tracy said all SAT and PSAT testing is scheduled by the College Board, a non-profit organization that owns, develops and publishes the SAT.

"When our testing coordinator was notified of the May 5th testing date, we didn't immediately notice the conflict with the annual Town Meeting," Tracy said. "As soon as the College Board was informed by our testing coordinator, they began making arrange-

Waters dedicates novel to Mr. Kelley

'Scent of Gardenia' available now.

By AMANDA GELDHOF

WILMINGTON - Richard Waters, a previous resident and Wilmington High School (WHS) graduate, dedicated his recently released novel "Scent of Gardenia" to Frank Kelley, legendary WHS track coach and math teacher for 35 years.

"He [Kelley] truly has no idea how much of an impact he has made on hundreds of his former students," Waters said. "I have a strong set of values, and I honestly have to say that my inspiration for them was Kelley."

Waters' book isn't the first book Kelley has influenced. In 2010, author Rick Cooke released the book "Our Mr. Kelley: a Lifetime of Coaching and Caring." Click here to read the full story of "Our Mr. Kelley."

"Scent of Gardenia" is the second novel in the Scott Tucker mystery series. Waters' synopsis of the book: "Rich young men from Massachusetts are disappearing in Bermuda along

Residents file odor lawsuit

Tewksbury & Wilmington neighbors file against pig farm

By JON BISHOP

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Odor Group, which opposes the existence of what they call a

"concentrated hog production facility" at Krochmal Farm on South Street, announced recently that it will seek a lawsuit against the farm.

The group is headed by Tewksbury resident Dave Powers.

In 2005 residents began noticing an odor emanating from the farm, as this, according to the Tewksbury Odor website, is when Krochmal first constructed a new facility for hog farming.

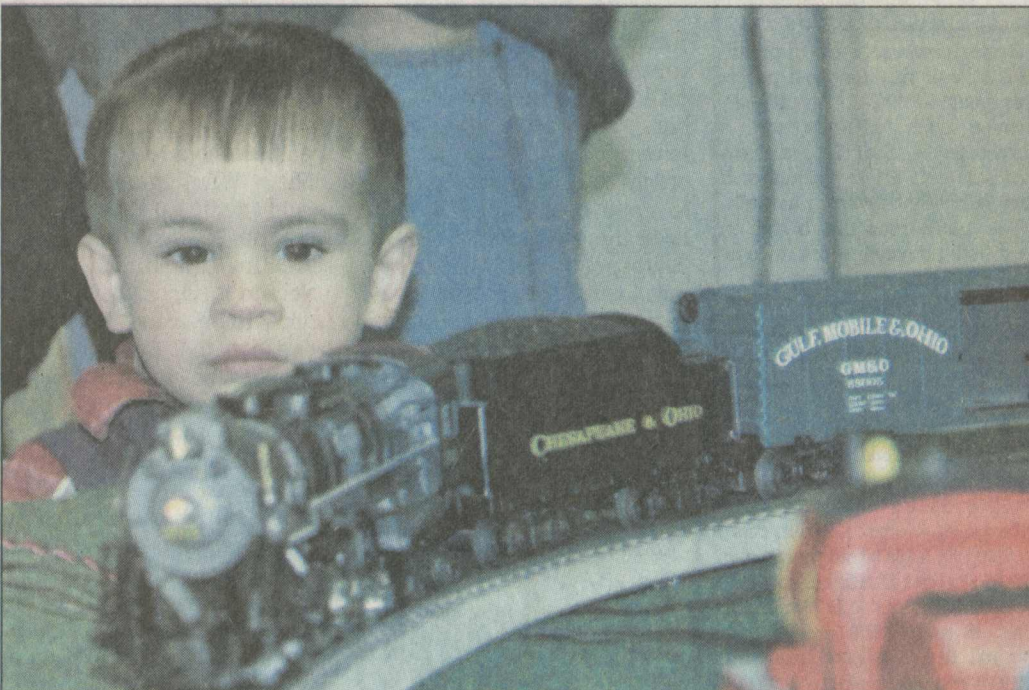

The smell, which comes from pig waste, has attracted much attention in recent years, the passage of a home rule petition, a hearing on Beacon Hill, and many hours before the Board of Health of heated arguments between residents and farm owners. And it has lead Tewksbury and Wilmington to attempt to regulate the farm.

The Tewksbury Board of Health, under the direction of director Lou-Ann Clement, issued a site assignment, which is a method of monitoring solid waste. Since then, she said the farm has been compliant.

"They've been complying

The road they marched upon SAT vs Town Meeting

Wilmington Minutemen and the march to Bedford, April 19, 1775

By Capt. Larz Neilson

WILMINGTON - How did the Wilmington Minutemen get to Bedford? There is no record of their exact route. The only thing that can be done is to study the information that is known, and deduce the rest. Part of the record is written, part of it is folklore. The written record, it must be said, is scanty.

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen did march. They took part in the battle at Meriam's Corner, along with Minutemen from Reading and Billerica. All three towns had companies in the Second Regiment of Foot. That is all in the record, together with the names of the commanders. Wilmington's commander was Capt. Cadwallader Ford, Jr., he who had signed the Wilmington Resolves in large handwriting, in a manner that was only surpassed on the Declaration of Independence by John Hancock.

Ford lived in a home on Salem Street that faces Middlesex Avenue. His father-in-law was the minister, Rev. Isaac Morrill, the man who, it can be guessed, wrote the Wilmington Resolves, which were then voted at town meeting and constitute a magnificent document in the history of this country.

Prior to the beginnings of the struggle that led to independence of the United States, there had been, for about 150 years, companies of militia, called the "trayned band" in Massachusetts.

The colony was not unarmed. It had a military background worthy of respect — due the long struggle with the natives, and with the French, to the north.

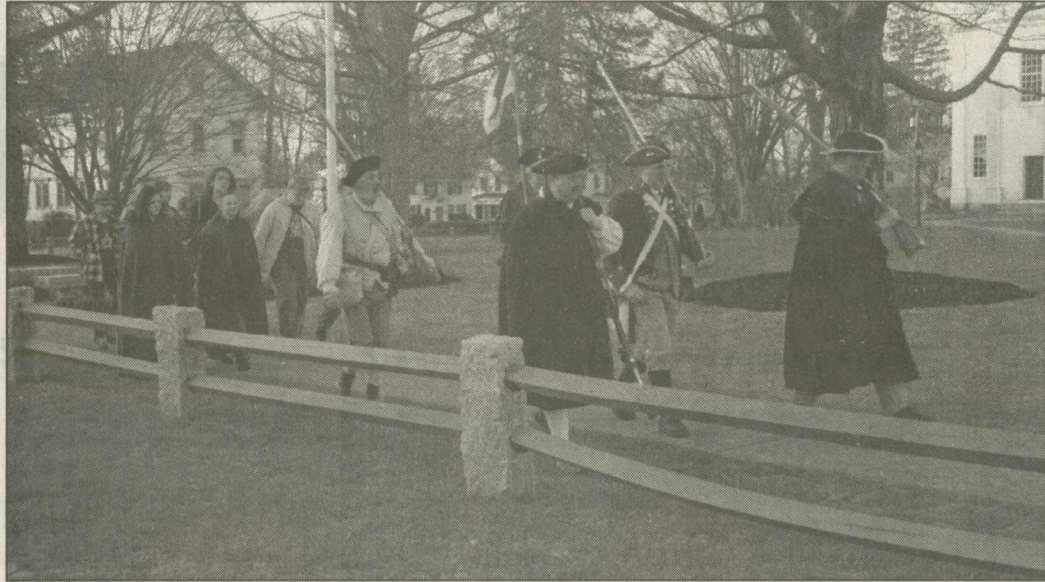

In the years just prior to the Revolution, this had become resolved in each county having half a dozen or more regiments, all with officers loyal to the king.

Middlesex County, by happenstance, had all its regiments centered on Concord, which was a shire town. The First Regiment of Foot had a company in Lexington, and more companies in the towns southerly of Lexington. The Second Regiment of Foot had a company in Bedford and more companies in the towns easterly Tewksbury, Billerica, Wilmington, Reading, Woburn and Stoneham.

The Third Regiment of Foot and a Fourth Regiment of Foot all had a company near Concord. Perhaps there were more.

All were companies of what would today be called militia, commanded by local men who swore fealty to King George. Every man from 16 to 60 was enrolled in one of the companies.

Then came the Boston Tea Party and other events of historical import. General Gage

For over four decades the Wilmington Minutemen have re-enacted the original company's march to Miriam's Corner. Here they are marching through Bedford center, on Saturday morning, joined by a member of the Bedford Minutemen (white crossed straps on his chest). Shown in the lead are Company Sergeant Bill Robinson, Adjutant Sergeant Frank West, Pvt. Bob Stone, Pvt. Charlie Kelley followed by family members and Scouts from Troop 56.

was sent to occupy the Port of Boston, with four regiments of Regulars under his command.

Gage was a man who was well-liked by the people of that day. He had a summer home in Danvers. His wife was a New England girl. He fit well into the social life of the colony.

He was a soldier of the king. As the struggle grew, little by little, he had to, perforce, obey the orders that came from London.

Historically, the change in the militia system, which was hardly suspected by some, came as a result of the Congress at Concord, in 1774. The companies were directed to elect their own officers. Gone, at one scratch of the pen, were the officers who were loyal to King George. In command were men who were loyal to the colony, and only through the colony were they loyal to the king.

Also created were a Committee of Safety and a Committee of Supply.

With the militia in command of the patriots, another step was taken, during the fall of 1774. One third of the men in the militia of any town were to be organized into companies of Minutemen, prepared to march within an hour of receiving orders.

The organization of the Minutemen was not instantly achieved. Some companies began organizing in December 1774.

January and February 1775 saw more companies organize. Wilmington's company came together on March 9, 1775. Like other Minutemen companies, they were required to undergo "ten half-days of training."

They elected Cadwallader Ford, Jr. as their commander. Thus the militia companies of the various regiments were refined into an elite striking force. Gen. Gage did not realize it, but he was surrounded by thousands of armed soldiers, ready to march within the hour when called.

The remaining militia in Wilmington marched as a separate company of about 50 men under Capt. Timothy Walker. This story, though, concerns Ford's Minutemen.

All of the activity was all highly secretive. No one wrote letters, and many of the orders that were passed seem to have been oral. To have been the possessor of written correspondence was to be faced with the possibility of death, if the British forces were to get possession of those messages.

Because of the danger, particularly after Concord Day, any messages in existence were certainly destroyed.

To get a history of events on that day is difficult. There are muster rolls in the State House. There are some narratives, told in later years. There are traditions which were handed down from father to son, and which, in some instances, are difficult to prove.

One source of information comes from a Reading officer, Dr. John Brooks, who was later (1816) a governor of Massachusetts. Dr. Brooks, 45 years after Concord Day, wrote of the events of that day.

Another source, not so positive, is the tradition that the Rev. Isaac Morrill was in Bedford on the morning of Concord Day, and that he and the Billerica minister called on the Bedford minister to go with them to Concord, to fight.

The Bedford minister, according to Wilmington tradition, is said to have advised his clerical brothers that he preferred to stay home and pray. Further, the Wilmington tradition says, when the battle was over, the Wilmington minister and the Billerica minister escorted the Bedford minister to the British lines.

Is there any truth in this tradition? The Town Crier is not prepared to say so. It is an old tale, but it has not been definitely proven. Perhaps it is unfair to the Bedford minister, in its allegations.

In examining who was where, when, though, it places the Rev. Isaac Morrill in Bedford, before the fighting began in Concord.

Lt. Brooks of Reading placed his company in Bedford, too, in his narration. Quite probably the two companies marched together. One cannot say positively that this was so.

One can say positively, however, that at Meriam's Corner, the Reading Minutemen, the Wilmington Minutemen and the Billerica Minutemen were in the line of battle, behind the stone wall. Of that there is no doubt. It was at Meriam's Corner that the Minutemen tore into the British line as the Redcoats jammed at a narrow bridge. The British retreat then became a rout.

The Wilmington troops fought again at the Bloody Angle in Lincoln against the retreating British.

Now to go back to Bedford, before the Second Regiment troops left that town to cut in back of the British troops, Reading was there. Of that there is no doubt. Wilmington and Billerica were also very likely there.

The Battle at Lexington Green was just a skirmish in a greater operation. General Gage, who was soon to be relieved by Lord Howe, had a goal for that day — the destruction of Patriot supplies, stored at Concord.

The British knew what they were after. The Americans knew what the British were after. The only question was in timing — when would it happen?

Paul Revere's ride did not "just happen." It was part of the careful planning of the day. Paul Revere was in the Sons of Liberty.

Other men rode that night, including an unknown man from Charlestown, who alerted the companies of the Second Regiment of Foot from Stoneham to Tewksbury, and including Wilmington.

It is not supposed that these messages arrived as, say, bolts out of the blue. The Minutemen and their commanders were alert to the situation. Lt. Brooks of Reading spent the day of April in Boston. It is to be believed that on his return home, he communicated with Cadwallader Ford, Jr. and with other commanders.

Col. Bridge of Billerica, an experienced soldier of the French and Indian war, undoubtedly had specific plans should the British march on Concord.

Bedford was the natural place to collect his troops. He would be on the flank of the enemy. He could march in any direction to best oppose the British.

There is every reason to believe that the companies of Reading, Wilmington, Tewksbury and Billerica had orders to march to Bedford, long before the day that the British marched. That was the logical move, for Col. Bridge. Add to this the legend or tradition that the Wilmington and Billerica ministers were in Bedford that morning. Naturally, they had marched with their troops. Their men were in Bedford and so were they.

There is one more little facet of light.

The Minutemen of Andover did not get into the fight at Concord, but it was not for the want of trying. It was simply that they arrived too late, four hours too late. They went on to become part of the forces that besieged Boston.

The Minutemen of Andover marched across Tewksbury and Billerica to Bedford, along what is now Shawshen Street in Tewksbury. The street has been changed, but that, on the record, was their route, the most direct route to Bedford.

So, Ford quite certainly had similar orders to march to Bedford.

He could have marched to Billerica and then to Bedford, but that would have been the long way around.

He could have gone to Woburn, down the Andover Road, so-called, but that, too, was the long way, and the Woburn Minutemen did not march to Bedford. They flanked the British at Concord. If the Wilmington Minutemen had marched to or through Woburn, they would have been in the same position, and would never have reached Meriam's Corner.

And fight at Meriam's Corner they did, 27 of them.

The most direct route to Bedford, from the Wilmington church, where the Wilmington Minutemen mustered, was down Butters Row and then over Wood Hill, on the road now called Mill Road. That road led to a point that was near where Burlington Center is today, where stood the church of Woburn's Second Parish. Past that church, the Wilmington Company of Minutemen marched, on the road to Bedford.

And the road over Wood Hill was definitely in existence on Concord Day. It was in existence in 1665, as is attested in the Woburn town records. Today, though, it only leads to a subdivision, and does not go over the hill into Burlington.

ments to relocate students to various approved test centers."

Tracy said WPS notified the College Board of the conflict on Friday, April 12.

Students who were scheduled to take the SAT and PSAT on May 5 will receive notification with a new location from the College Board via the USPS.

Parents are not happy about the change, which will have many, if not all students, taking the test in Lawrence at Central Catholic high school.

One parent, who preferred to remain anonymous, told the Crier that students registered for the test months ago on advice from guidance counselors who told parents that students tend to test better in their comfort zone. Further, the school has been offering SAT test preparation classes on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon beginning in March, in advance of the May testing date.

The parent added that most of these students are juniors and new drivers, and the prospect of driving into Lawrence is unpalatable.

"The SAT is a big deal, students prepare for it for months, and it plays a big part into where they go to college," said the parent. "The kids got bumped because the adults trumped them (for town meeting). Its too bad no consideration was given to moving the kids or accommodating the testing."

Similar comments were made throughout various social media sites during the week as well.

Because Wilmington High School is only an approved testing site and does not handle testing logistics, WPS cannot choose another testing site or provide transportation to alternate testing sites.

"We apologize for the inconvenience and will continue to work with the College Board to relocate students as they deem necessary," Tracy said.

Odor lawsuit filed with the site assignment right now. We had our spring site visit. Things looked well," said Clement. She also said that recent complaints have only been sporadic.

Powers, however, disagrees, which is why he, along with his group, is filing the lawsuit.

"It's pretty basic. The odors are not gone. The odors are pretty severe," he said.

Last weekend, he said, the odors were "absolutely disgusting." He said they were exacerbated by the heat.

He said state and local governments have acted with "complete disregard" for the neighbors. He also said that the lawsuit was a last resort.

"We've tried everything we can," said Powers, adding that the site assignment is "not doing enough."

Much of Powers' concern arises from potential health risks. Officials, according to his website, "still have not assured us that the foul air we breathe isn't harmful to our families' health."

Powers could not comment further, as he is being represented by Richard Middleton, an attorney from Georgia. Middleton, according to Powers, specializes in cases that deal with factory farms.

The Crier attempted to contact Middleton, but he could not be reached for comment. His secretary said that he was in the midst of travel to a few different states.

with their yachts. Police theorize that the men are being 'kept' since no ransoms have been requested. Scott Tucker, who himself was kidnapped in an earlier novel, is asked to help locate one of the missing men. The official investigation is having no success, and the FBI is now involved along with a separate private investigation. The missing men soon have additional company."

Many Wilmington residents and high school graduates may find themselves in Waters' book. Waters said many of the "missing people" were named after some of his WHS classmates.

Waters released "Serial Separation," the first novel in the series, last year. It is set in the Boston area, and his main character, Scott Tucker, is a Harvard student. In fact, if you read "Serial Separation," you'll find that Waters describes a criminal investigation office at 55 Brattle Street, Harvard Square.

The office he is describing is actually the building he worked at as a young man. Then it was an architectural center, and today it is an apartment building. Click here to read the full story of

"Serial Separation."

The third novel in the series, "Branded for Murder," is ready for publication and will likely be released later this year. Waters said in the third novel, a serial killer known as the "New England Strangler" hits Wilmington and other nearby cities.

Waters said he has always been a writer of sorts. He used to write specifications for application systems, or procedures for their use.

"However, after I retired in '09 I needed to take some of that creativity and apply it somewhere else," Waters said. "I like mysteries and thrillers, and writing my own just became a natural outlet."

Although Waters is a self-taught mystery writer, he said he has been experimenting with other formats of stories by writing and submitting short stories for competitions.

"I am also considering writing a true 'thriller' and a 'love story.' My dad has dementia and I'm making some notes about my experience, as an only child trying to help with his care while he still knows who I am," Waters said.

It's Your Money MEDICARE PREMIUMS

Basic Medicare Part B premiums rise slightly for most people this year to $99.90. But higher-income seniors will pay more: a surcharge on Part B premiums and also on Part D premiums, if they carry that coverage as well.

The surcharges are based on modified adjusted gross income (for the 2010) and filing status, plus certain tax-exempt interest and foreign earned income. If income has dropped considerably since 2010, one can apply to Social Security for relief.

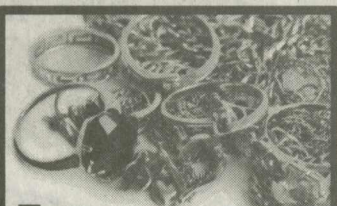

Singles and heads of households with incomes under $85,000 would pay no surcharge. Over that to $107,000 there's a $40 surcharge plus $11.60 on Part D; from there to $160,000, a $99.90 surcharge plus $29.90 on Part D. Higher-incomes up to $214,000 pay $159.80 more on Part B and $48.10 on Part D. Beyond that, the surcharges are $219.90 and $66.40. Married and filing jointly, the brackets are exactly double. For separate filers, it gets complicated; ask.

Letters to the editor

Thanks from Brothers

Dear Editor,
I wanted to send my appreciation to the 2,368 voters who voted for me on Saturday, April 14th.

I am humbled by your confidence in me, and I will dedicate the next three years on the board to all of the citizens of Tewksbury, as I keep your welfare in mind.

This running for office is a very hard and time consuming job. But, as someone once told me "it is worth it." For all of the candidates out there I have great respect for the job that you did. A great bunch of people!

Thanks to all for permission for signs on your properties. For those who signed my nomination papers. For those of you that sent endorsement letters. Thanks to those special people out there, for all of the encouragement you gave me to run again.

And finally, the biggest thank you to my husband Bud and his sign! Without his dedication I don't think we would have had as much success.

Sincerely,

Kathleen M. Brothers

Elect Mulas for Schools

Dear Wilmington Residents,
We have an opportunity on Saturday, April 28th to elect a new and worthy candidate, Manny Mulas, to the Wilmington School Committee.

Over the past year, I have had the benefit of getting to know Manny better as a person and as an active Wilmington resident. During this time I have continued to learn more about Manny's dedication to his family and his willingness to support key initiatives and important projects for the betterment of our children, our schools and our community. Additionally, I had the pleasure of working together with Manny and others as members of the WHS 4.0 Committee. It was a very positive and rewarding experience working with this entire group of Wilmington volunteers who were all committed to achieving the one most important goal of making a NEW Wilmington High School a reality. This goal was achieved due to the overwhelming support of many Wilmington residents as demonstrated by the ballot box results from the most recent Special Election for the Town of Wilmington as well as by the voting results from the Special Town Meeting held this past December.

If elected to the Wilmington School Committee, Manny promises to continue to be a strong advocate for children and public education. This includes Manny's focus on supporting a seamless K-12 educational experience for all students centered around quality learning for all ages and skill levels; driving high academic standards with proven results; providing industry leading technology within our schools, providing professional development for all teachers; and engaging in strategic opportunities to partner with the Wilmington community and local businesses for the overall benefit of our students.

Please join me on Saturday, April 28th in electing a deserving candidate, Manny Mulas, to the Wilmington School Committee. Thank you. Sincerely,

Judith L. O'Connell

Marchese responds to criticism

Dear Editor,
I am writing in response to last week's article regarding my recent letter to the Board of Selectmen and Mr. Champoux's response at the Board of Selectmen's meeting. First let me be very clear, that before writing my letter I did go through all the "proper" channels regarding the traffic at the Middle School. I have been in frequent contact with the police department all year regarding the ongoing traffic problems at the Middle School and most recently three weeks ago regarding an incident involving one of my children. My first phone call was to the School Administration and then to the Police Department. As I stated last week any changes to the traffic patterns need to be reviewed and approved by the Board of Selectmen, thus my reason for writing the letter.

Now that we have the facts, I find it a bit ironic that the members of the Board of Selectmen have been asking for civility and respect at their meetings, but as soon as a citizen writes a letter to the Board, simply asking for their support on a certain issue, that person is attacked and accused of playing politics. It is very disturbing to find out that the very person who is making accusations against me, is the same person who wrote a letter to the editor in support of one of my opponents in the upcoming race for School Committee, who is playing politics now? I question Mr. Champoux's judgment and find him to be very disingenuous in his attacks against me without first finding out all of the facts.

I have the utmost respect for the Members of the Board of Selectmen and the Town Manager. Being a public figure is not an easy job, one that I know all too well. My letter to the Board of Selectmen was written in the most professional and courteous manner. Apparently trying to be courteous is not enough for Mr. Champoux. If we cannot ask questions of our Town Leaders, in an open letter without being subjected to baseless accusations and innuendo, then what kind of Town leadership are we really left with?

As of the writing of this letter I have since spoken with Mr. Champoux about my concerns and have answered his questions. I only ask that in the future that the members of the Board of Selectmen afford me the same courtesy and respect that I have for them should another situation arise in the future.

Acts of Kindness

by Jomarie O'Mahony

The Bucket List

One of my closest friends just completed the Boston Marathon. The simplicity of that sentence seems out of line with what actually went into her effort. She trained for months and worked so hard to be able to push herself for over 26 miles. When asked why she was doing it, she would say "it is on my bucket list."

In talking with another friend last night about how she has inspired us, we realized we didn't have bucket lists. Sure, I have goals that I want to attain but if asked "what is something you would absolutely HAVE to accomplish" or (in the glass half empty version) "what is something you would regret not attempting?" I am not sure I would have answers readily available.

I did an internet search for "bucket lists" and was surprised at the many sites with suggestions from "meeting the President" to "run a marathon" to "swim in the ocean" but what was most shocking to me were the suggestions of "do a kind act anonymously for 5 strangers" and "find joy in your life". No offense to bucket list suggestion creators but....don't we all seek joy in our lives regularly and, if we aren't, is that really something that needs to be placed on a "bucket list" rather than just being part of our lifestyle? Isn't expressing kindness to humankind something we should all strive towards without needing to check it off a list?

I know I may be crossing the lines into philosophical rhetoric a bit much at this point but what I am trying to express to all of you is the idea that, maybe instead of needing to create a bucket list, we can all realize how we are living our bucket list! This month, I ask for you to make an honest evaluation of your current life and what the pros and cons are. Once you identify the cons, you can't ignore them and only then will you be able to work on changing them.

For me, I am working on de-cluttering my life, one drawer and closet at a time. If you are in the same boat, keep in mind the following collections: April 28th is National Drug Take Back day at the Public Safety Building for any old medications that may still be lingering in your medicine cabinet and May 12th is Hazardous Waste Collection Day here in town for whatever you may discover throughout your house (and basement!)

For items that you can pass along (clothing, kids items, etc.) consider donating to local organizations such as Mission of Deeds, Lowell Wish Project and Heartbeat (email me for contact info on any of these great organizations).

Maybe your "bucket list" includes completing a 5K with your family? WOW is having their second annual 5K on May 6th (which I will be doing with my husband and kids). For more information, you can visit www.womenofwilmington.org. Or maybe it is to experience the power of a Relay for Life? (www.main.acevents.org and then search for Wilmington). Have you always wanted to take a self-defense class? Our police department is offering a great one beginning May 7th (go to www.wpd.org and look for info on "RAD").

Finally, no person is an island so I once again encourage you to support your community. This Sunday, April 22nd, is an Open House to honor the 20th Anniversary of the Wilmington Food Pantry. Stop by the Wilmington Knights of Columbus from 2-4 PM to thank Bob DiPalma and all of his wonderful volunteers for all that they have done to support our community.

Also, don't forget to vote on April 28th and attend our annual Town Meeting on May 5th. It is our responsibility as citizens to support our government.

I hope I wasn't too much for you this month, but my hope is that you begin to realize all of the accomplishments you complete every day without even realizing it and all of the opportunity that is right outside your door. Watching my friend approach mile 17, I was not only so proud of her for being there, but I was so happy that my 8 year old daughter was with me to witness it (bucket list item "Have strong women in my life who will inspire my daughters" CHECK).

As the warmer weather approaches, think of your dreams, goals, bucket list items, etc. and start planning on checking them off. Remember, as Helen Keller said, "Life is either a daring adventure or nothing at all."

As always, email me any questions, comments, your bucket lists or whatever you would like to share to jomarie0525@yahoo.com.

Making it easier for youth to vote

As the Chair of the Joint Committee on Election Laws, I'm proud to be one of the authors of the Election Laws Reform Act of 2012. This comprehensive bill was recently released from the committee and includes a number of measures that have been long fought for, including pre-registration for 16 and 17 year olds.

Each day, more than 12,500 Americans turn 18 years old and become eligible to vote. According to the U.S. Census, just 58.5 percent of 18 to 24 year olds were registered to vote in 2008 in the U.S., the lowest rate of registration among all age groups. In Tewksbury there are 2,454 residents between the ages of 18 and 24, and 929 of them are not registered to vote. This means almost 38 percent of young people in Tewksbury are not involved in the electoral process at all—that's more than one in three young adults.

It is so important to get young people registered to vote because study after study has shown that people who get involved in the political process at a young age are much more likely to stay engaged as they age. According to Rock the Vote, voters who pre-registered have been shown to turn out at higher rates than peers who registered to vote for the first time upon or after turning 18. Additionally, in states that have embraced pre-registration, town clerks and election officials often conduct outreach and education efforts in their local high schools, getting teenagers registered while they are still grounded in their community.

Don't we want our kids to be informed and involved in their community? The instinctual changes included in this legislation will serve young people, and the entire electorate, very well. The other changes include mandatory training for local election officials, election audits on voting machines and online voter registration.

These days, people expect to be able to do almost anything online. The bill requires the Secretary of State to publish on the internet a voter registration form in PDF format. A registrant may fill out the form on his or her computer, print it, sign it, and send it to the appropriate city elections department or town clerk's office. A national version of a voter registration form is now available online; however this law will provide a much clearer Massachusetts-specific form that is more user-friendly. Allowing a resident to register to vote in one step is progress towards making our elections process more accessible.

If passed, this bill will be the most significant reform to strengthen the electoral processes in Massachusetts in 20 years. I'm proud to have brought it this far, and I hope we can get it passed into law this year.

Barry Finegold is the State Senator for Andover, Dracut, Tewksbury and Lawrence.

Fiscal sanity needed in state budget

Dear Editor, Town Crier:

Two weeks ago, after 10 minutes of debate, the House of Representatives passed another massive, $200 million bond bill just to pay for annual transportation operating expenses. This action demonstrates the ease with which extraordinary indebtedness and overspending—pervasive on Beacon Hill—creates structural deficits that fracture our economic recovery. I offer warnings and solutions to this business as usual.

First, the state must learn to fund critical services, such as basic transportation projects, in our annual operating budget. For too long, the regular budget has been a special interest giveaway, and basic services are placed before the legislature as individual bills or bond sales at a future date, making it seem politically unpalatable to vote against them, even if we cannot afford it. Instead, we must support core services as top priorities in the state budget and limit borrowing to long-term infrastructure projects.

Second, brazen spending contributes to our growing, unsustainable debt load. This includes billions in unfunded liabilities and unresolved MBTA and Big Dig debt, making inevitable federal spending cuts even more painful. Just because we can borrow, doesn't mean we should.

Third, continued heavy borrowing and spending increases unpredictability for the private-sector, suggesting the state will eventually tax and regulate more to feed higher spending. We should all be alarmed that the commonwealth's debt service is 11% of state tax receipts, about $2.5 billion, giving us one of the highest debt-per-capita ratios in the nation. This also wastes critical funds needed for infrastructure or local aid.

Massachusetts has many competitive advantages, but state government undermines our people by increasing taxes and government debt. These policies threaten the economic liberty of individuals and industry, as demonstrated by California and Illinois' failure to exercise fiscal restraint. If elected your state senator, I will continue fighting for fiscal sanity as the antidote to the tax and spend culture on Beacon Hill.

Paul Adams, Republican, is the State Representative for the 17th Essex District representing a portion of Tewksbury, Andover, and Lawrence.

Train club has successful open house

WILMINGTON - A large turnout of local residents and families attended the Boston Metro Hi-Railers open house this past Saturday. Wilmington Selectmen Michael Champoux and Senator Bruce Tarr gave welcoming remarks and good wishes from state officials and the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, led by Executive Director Nancy Vallee arranged the public ceremony. Wilmington Cable Television spent over six hours at the facility taking videos of the event. They interviewed many participants and covered all the major areas including the children's display. These videos will be available on the local access cable channel.

Senator Tarr caused a great deal of laughter when he said he was happy to see trains that ran on time and didn't need fare increases, referring to recent news events involving the MBTA. The club had some new scenery on the layout display for the first time. It will be a three year project to complete the scenery due to the size of the layout. The club has a new group of expert scenery makers and expects to have the best layout in the region.

Adults, train modelers and a large group of families and children had a great day. We had many compliments about the layout.

Marty Fitzhenry, one of the most prominent train club experts, posted favorable comments in the o gauge forum about the event. Marty has been involved in the hobby for over a decade. He is a nationally known expert in the train hobby area. He is the chief certified repair contactor for both MTH and Lionel trains in the area.

He commented, "Wow; we went to the club for a visit. I was very impressed with the new facility and the top notch job the guys did on the layout. People, this thing is huge. Everything ran great and all the members present

Support for Mulas

Dear Editor,
Manny has our vote!

We first met our dear friend Manny Mulas over 20 years ago. When Manny told us he was running for School Committee we couldn't wait to support him. Manny is a great person, a true friend and a man of his word. Like many parents in Wilmington, we want our children to have a great education and do their best. We believe Manny understands this and will work hard to bring 21st century learning to Wilmington. He has two wonderful daughters in the Wilmington school system and wants the best for his girls and our children as well. Manny cares about the safety of our kids and is a great advocate for public education. He volunteers his time as a soccer coach and children look up to him. We have no doubt that Manny will do his absolute best if elected to the Wilmington School Committee. We are proud to call him a friend and ask you to vote for Manny on April 28th!

Kimberly & Angelo Febbo

Two votes for MJ Byrnes

Dear Wilmington voters,
We are submitting this letter to express our support for Mary Jane Byrnes, "MJ" for School Committee. MJ is a candidate for one of the two open seats on the School Committee. Over the past seven years, we have been fortunate to get to know MJ, her husband Joe, and their two children Conor and Erika, and call them friends. Our sons attended the Wildwood pre-school program together. Our families bonded immediately both being families who have made a commitment to civil duty of law enforcement.

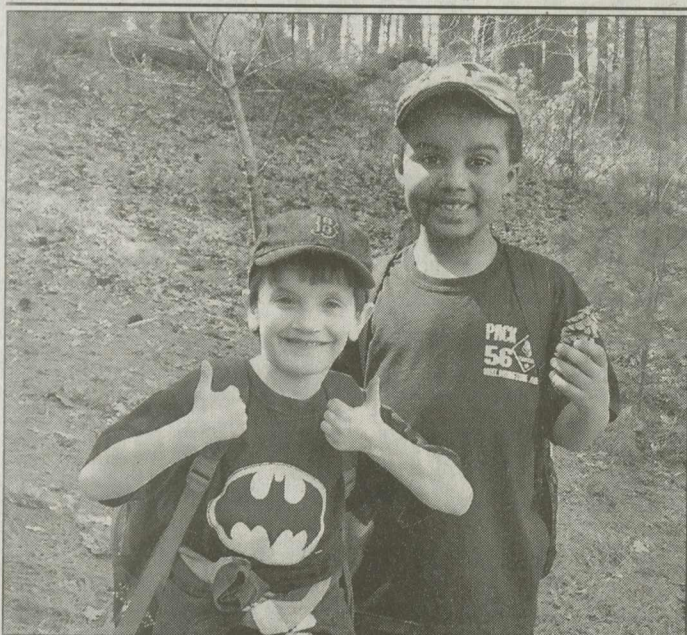

MJ is a friendly, honest, energetic woman who will commit her time to learn about the issues at hand and have a strong contribution to successful end results. MJ has sat on various school boards within town. As a current board member on the SEPAC, Special Education Parent Advisory Council, MJ has developed strong and productive bonds with parents and our school personnel. MJ will come to the table as a team player with suggestions, questions, and ideas to strengthen the existing programs and work with the board to improve the quality education that Wilmington Public Schools is known for. MJ not only wants to move Wilmington students towards the 21st century education, but also wants to focus on current education. MJ will make sure that all school children and teachers have the tools in place that allow them to work to their fullest potential.

MJ is a very dedicated wife and mother to her family. Now she wants to not only make a difference that supports her own children, but she wants to make a difference that will benefit ALL children within our school district.

I encourage all residents to take the time to learn about what each candidate has to offer our students. On April 28, 2012, the Nally's will be casting one of their votes for MJ Byrnes. MJ's positive impact on our school children will be seen throughout the town. Please vote for Mary Jane Byrnes at the polls on April 28, 2012!

Thank you for your consideration.

'MacSanity' defined

Dear Editor;

I wanted to give a brief description of "MacSanity". MacSanity is what I am offering to the voters, taxpayers, and residents of the Town of Wilmington. If the voters should decide to choose me as their next selectman they will get MacSanity. MacSanity will treat the Board of Selectmen seat as the seat of the people not a self serving position or crony establishment special interest puppet position. MacSanity, unlike my opponent, will not be a cheerleader for hack selectmen and the crony establishment. MacSanity would not have voted for a pay raise of over $ 10,000 per year for a Town manager when many people have lost jobs and over 150 foreclosure notices have gone out in Wilmington. MacSanity would have recognized that the Manager and his wife are both on the Town payroll and have been for twenty plus years without missing a paycheck or being laid off and are grossing over $200,000 per year into their household. PAY RAISE not necessary, hammering the taxpayers NOT necessary! MacSanity will bring hard work, honesty, positive solutions to problems, and a demand for cost efficiency to the Board of Selectmen.

MacSanity will not tolerate department heads abusing their authority and costing the Town a fortune in law suits. I would recommend that people who have received misinformation about me should go to the website of WCTV which is vimeo.com/40399783 and watch the debate between me and my opponent.

Thank you,
Kevin MacDonald
Wilmington

(Editor's Note: Mr. MacDonald's figures are incorrect, but certainly hyperbolic. Mr. Cairra did indeed receive a $10,000 raise, in FY10. He has not had a raise since then. The Crier finds Mr. MacDonald's comments in poor taste, particularly by referencing Mr. Cairra's wife, an employee in the School Department. However, because they are both public employees, the Crier can confirm that they gross considerably less than $200,000. Finally, Mr. MacDonald's use of a broad brush painting every department head negatively at every opportunity is hard to fathom and tiresome.)

Penalties for bank owned homes?

Dear Editor, Town Manager, and Selectmen,

I wanted to discuss an issue that I see in the town that should be addressed as other towns have. The issue is neglected, unoccupied, bank repossessed and uncared for homes. I read an article in this past Sunday's Globe regarding how our neighbor Woburn handles this issue. I think that it is something that should be adopted by the town. Within 3 blocks of my home there are 4 bank repossessed homes and 2-3 others that are empty and neglected.

These homes are an eyesore to their neighbors. They are also an invite for curious children to get into trouble or hurt. The home owners left in these neighborhoods have had their home values depreciated because the homes and their yards are not cared for.

Woburn has adopted a plan where empty, unoccupied or bank repossessed homes must register with the city. The new plan also has penalties that may be brought against the banks or owners for not taking reasonable care of the yards and homes. That would include maintaining lawns, painting homes if needed and insuring that the homes are not an eyesore. This is the least the town could do to its remaining tax base.

Mandatory recycling?

Thumbs up to the town of Wilmington for instituting mandatory recycling beginning this July! Can we PLEASE follow suit in Tewksbury? It is so disheartening to see how many homes in our town do NOT recycle on trash day!

Such a simple solution: no recycling bin = no trash pick-up.

Wilmington's Relay for Life tops half million dollar mark

WILMINGTON - Relay for Life of Wilmington has reached another significant milestone. The local event has now received a total of over one-half million dollars for the fight against cancer. "We are thrilled about the news," says Ashlee Iber, American Cancer Society representative who supports the town's Relay planning committee. "Wilmington has a strong community of support, and their success is no surprise."

In fact, the Relay for Life of Wilmington has been an award winning event each year since its first year in 2009. The inaugural town Relay was the '2009 American Cancer Society New England Division #1 New Community Relay. What's more, as part of Middlesex County, the team was also recognized because together the relays of Middlesex won the #1 Per Capita Award Nationwide.

They won this award last year as well.

Event co-chairs Patrick Giroux and Joe Martiniello, announced the news at last week's Team Captain meeting. For 2012, it was a recent large push by several teams that put the donation totals over the $500,000 total.

Two teams sponsored a fund raiser entertainment night featuring Hypnotist Frank Santos Jr. The teams, Sole Sistas and Cathy's Cancer Crusaders, raised $6101 while 242 attendees were amazed at the funny and fascinating antics featured at the audience participation event.

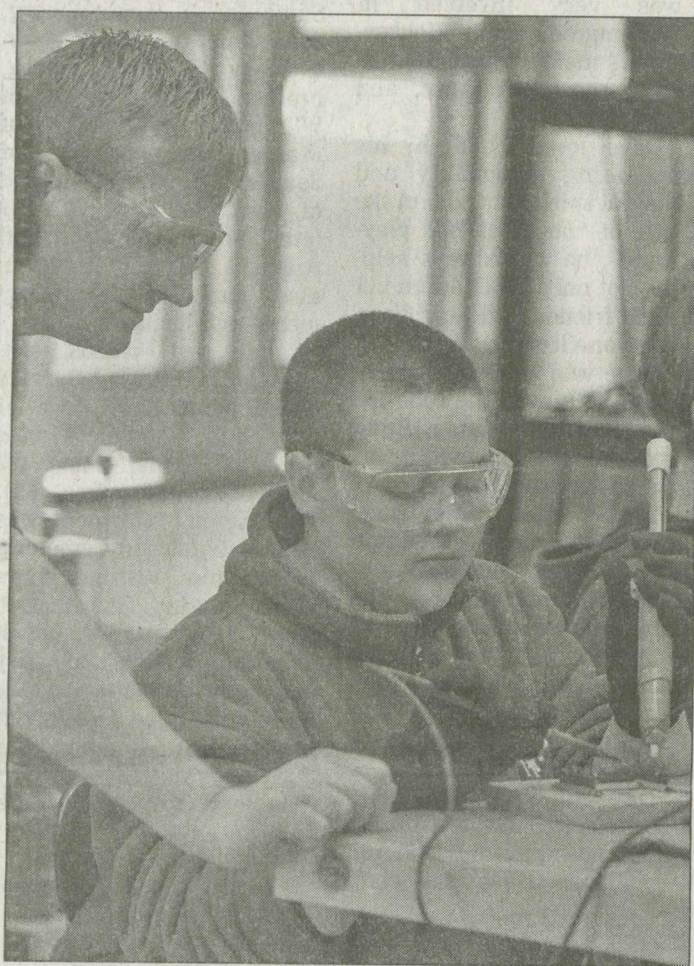

In addition, Fight Back Commanders raised almost $4,000 at their annual Relay for Life dinner. The event has been held for three years and gets bigger each time. The Appian Club in Stoneham hosts the fund raising fabulous feast which includes music and dancing.

Appian members Yolanda and Mario Martiniello of Wilmington are the event organizers.

"Add these to other significant event contributions such as the annual Sons of Italy Easter Bunny Breakfast and the total for this four year effort soars," said Joe Martiniello as he thanked all those involved. Iber also thanked Wilmington as she described attending a recent selectman meeting. "Each selectman commented about the event and its importance to the community and individuals with such strong praise and feelings," she reports. "It was very moving."

This year's Relay for Life of Wilmington will be held on June 15 at 5:30 p.m. at Shawsheen Valley Technical School. For more information visit www.wilmingtonnrl.com or contact Ashlee Iber at 781-314-2652.

Scott Randall Johnson

Formerly of Wilmington; part of the Perfect Turn family at Sunday River

Greenwood, ME - Scott Randall (Randy) Johnson, 54, of Greenwood, Maine died unexpectedly at home on Friday, April 6, 2012. He was born on March 7, 1958, the son of Harry and Nicky Johnson. He lived his first few years in West Richfield, Ohio before moving back to Wilmington, Massachusetts with his family.

After graduating from Wilmington High School, Randy spent two years in the Navy before returning home. He worked odd jobs until he went to work for his two brothers, Marc and Rod, installing furniture systems in Massachusetts. He later became his sister Fran's biggest helper and closest friend at her sporting camps in the backwoods of Maine, and when she moved into the Bethel area, he soon followed. Bethel became his new home and he worked as part of the Perfect Turn family at Sunday River Skiway managing the River House with Fran, as well as being a valuable member of the Gould Academy dining hall family.

Randy's entire family will miss him so very much, but most especially his sister Fran and her children Aimey, Tucker, Elayna and Autumn for whom he was more than just an uncle, along with his dog Belle, who loved their long walks in the woods, and all the cats that he cared for like they were his own children. He is also survived by his sisters Dianne Ladd, her husband Bruce and son Hobie of Boulder, Colorado; Kathi Burke of Greenwood, Maine and her daughters Heather and Kristin; brothers Marc Johnson, his wife Carol of Manchester, New Hampshire and their children Marc, Marissa and Courtney; Rod Johnson and his fiancé LouAnn of North Andover, Massachusetts and Rod's children Randy, Jessica and Lexi along with many other family members including Robin Morin who was like a sister to him, many cousins, and grandnieces and grandnephews who all loved his kind and gentle soul. He is predeceased by his parents, his sister Laurie, his brother Frank, and his brother-in-law John Burke.

Anyone who knew Randy at all knew what a hard worker he was. He liked to think that he lived his life quietly and unnoticed, but he was noticed and appreciated and loved by many more people than he ever realized. He was lucky to have lived his last years feeling a part of such a warm and welcoming community.

Services celebrating Randy's life will be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 28, 2012 at the Bethel Alliance Church on Walker's Mills Road (Rte. 26) with a short reception to follow. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Responsible Pet Care- dogs, PO Box 82, Norway, Maine 04268.

Memories of WWII surface for Wilmington family

Veteran opens up, shares stories of military service

By MARCY RAGUCCI

WILMINGTON - Many veterans have related memories of their experiences in World War II over the years but Angelo "Rico" Russo of Wilmington never spoke of them until Wilmington Veterans' Agent, Lou Cimaglia, visited his home recently to answer a few questions for him about benefits.

During that visit Rico opened up a door to his past that had been closed decades ago. According to his wife, Bernice, like many other veterans, Rico had never spoken in detail of his experiences until that day when the conversation with Cimaglia unearthed some amazing stories and she learned more about what happened to Rico during World War II than she had learned since the Russo's were married in 1955.

The Town Crier has always recognized how important it is to honor our veterans at every opportunity but it is equally important to honor the memories that veterans like Rico hold deep within their souls. If it had not been for Cimaglia's alerting the Crier, Rico's memories may never have been revealed to his wife, his children, and his grandchildren or any of the people who know him well.

Rico is a remarkable man who, at the young age of 86, related his amazing experiences in intricate detail with almost the same vitality and clarity he must have had in the 1940's. He held the small audience in his living room mesmerized waiting for him to complete each adventure and wondering what the next experience would reveal. His daughter even recorded the interview so that other family members and especially his son, Michael who is currently serving as an Army engineer in Afghanistan, would be able to listen to later.

One of nine children, Rico grew up in Burlington on a farm. His mother, Anna (Brown), was born in Woburn and his father, Angelo, was born in Naples, Italy where part of Rico's story takes place.

Due to the fact that he was only 16 years old, Rico made an unsuccessful attempt in 1942 to enlist in the U.S. Navy with his older brothers, Freddie, Tony, Charlie and Rudy but later enlisted in 1943. He was sent to Norfolk, VA and attended Armed Guard School with the intention of being a gunner on Navy ships.

What should have been a 26 week course of instruction was reduced to a 12 week course then squeezed down to a mere six week crash course for a very dangerous job. Rico awaited assignment to an aircraft carrier but had to wait until merchant ships were fitted with guns. These huge armed cargo ships supplied forces all over the world.

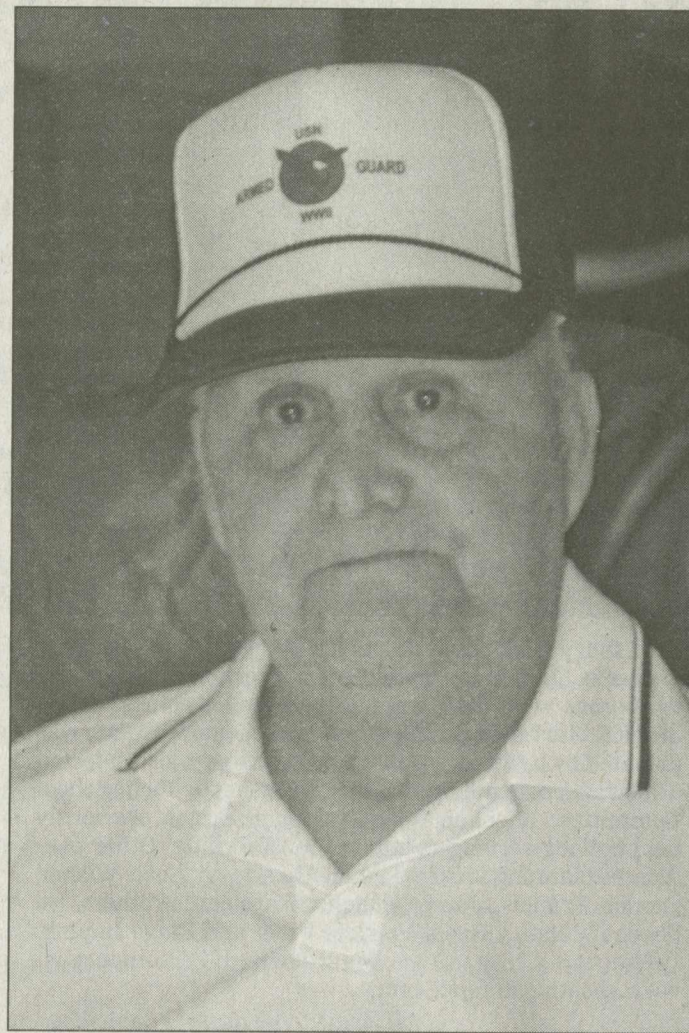

Serving on his first ship, the S.S. Theodore Sedgwick, in 1943 as a gunner, Rico recalls, "Our first tour took us to the Middle East. When we arrived in Karachi, India all we could see was the Indian people saturating a five-mile long beach. (They weren't allowed to go ashore in Karachi or at their next stop in Aden or at the next several stops, because an epidemic of dysentery had afflicted that entire area.) That tour in the Middle East lasted about a week, we picked up supplies and went to England to unload supplies."

From there, the armed cargo ship set off for Le Havre, in north-western France, on the right bank of the mouth of the river Seine on the English Channel. Sailors were granted leave in both England and France. The S.S. Theodore Sedgwick then returned to the United States.

His next assignment was aboard the S.S. Rosemont that departed from New York City bound for the Mediterranean. According to Rico they had a few German U-boat incidents on the way to their destination in Naples, Italy where they were to pick up supplies.

"The U-boats attacked our convoy and torpedoed a few of them. When we arrived in Naples, we were under attack. They were trying to bomb us. We came into Naples with guns blaring. After that, it took us all night to load supplies so that we could go on to Leghorn (Livorno) Italy," recalled Rico.

Rico continued, "From there (on the way to Leghorn) we went up a canal about 100 feet wide. The Germans brought a ship into the canal and torpedoed it so that our supply ships couldn't get through but American engineers came in and ripped the center of the ship and opened up the canal. We took turns dropping grenades down into the water to make sure there were no mines down there (in the canal). Finally we got by the sunken ship and arrived in Leghorn. There was a seven piece military band on the dock to greet us because we were the first ship to get through the canal."

Sitting on the dock was a curious structure that looked similar to an outhouse with a chimney and a cap on it. There was also a huge pile of coal about 125 ft. tall and to the left was a mountain peak. The Germans had carved out part of the mountain peak and an enormous gun called Big Bertha would emerge twice every day and shoot seven shells.

"While we were in Leghorn, the U.S. Air Force used an A26 aircraft to skip bomb into the entrance to blow up the German gun that had been placed in that mountain," said Rico.

According to Rico, the Americans had recently occupied that area. Sailors were warned that the Germans had loaded explosives into anything that Americans might be tempted to pick up so U.S. forces outlined the area with flags, red flags indicating danger and white flags meaning the area was clear.

After fulfilling their mission, the S.S. Rosemont prepared to leave Leghorn and the band played for them once again to express their gratitude. They were told by officials to wait for a surprise but had no inkling as to what that might be.

"At 6:45 a.m. we watched as Charlie (a German aircraft) began circling the dock and we were told to wait for our surprise. Just then the exterior walls of the outhouse structure fell open and we saw a gun. They took off the cap that was on the chimney and shot Charlie down and we watched him go up in smoke. Shortly after that the S.S. Rosemont departed Leghorn, Italy and Rico was bound for New York City once again.

Next week the Town Crier will reveal more about Rico's experiences on yet another armed naval cargo ship, the S.S. Thomas Sim Lee and his eventual trip to Murmansk, Russia plus the brief time he served in the Woburn National Guard and his experiences in the U.S. Air Force in the Korean War.

Keep informed with CodeRED

Tewksbury Police Department to utilize CodeRED Mobile Alert App

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Police Department through a contract with Emergency Communications Network, LLC, will begin providing public safety alerts through the company's new public safety app - CodeRED Mobile Alert.

The app, which is a free download for iPhone and Android subscribers, will allow Tewksbury residents, as well as those traveling through the area, to receive community and emergency alerts via notifications to their smartphones. Residents who have enrolled for the CodeRED System will continue to receive voice calls, text messages and emails. However, the app is designed to keep users safe and informed while on the go. "The app is unique because, for example, if we have a Tewksbury resident who is traveling to another state that also uses the CodeRED system, they will receive any community or emergency alerts from that specific area as well. It's just one extra way to stay safe when you're away from home."

Emergency, community and missing children alerts are always free to app users. The app also provides subscribers a free, 30-day trial of CodeRED Weather Warning, which alerts users if they are in the direct path of a severe thunderstorm, tornado or flash flood. Users have the ability to select the types of weather notifications they want receive, to customize the app based on their unique preferences. "With the weather component, you don't have to be worried about missing hearing a tornado siren or watching a weather report. The app will alert you immediately after the National Weather Service issues a severe weather warning, no matter the time of day."

Residents with iPhones and Android smartphones are encouraged to download the app to begin receiving notifications from the Tewksbury Police Department. The app is available for a free download on the iTunes store and Google Play. For more information or to download the CodeRED Mobile Alert app, visit: <http://ecnetwork.com/mobile/getitnow.html>.

Maguire's wife breaks silence

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - Largely avoiding the media since her husband's murder, an emotional Desiree Maguire on Friday said it was "too difficult" for her to watch or listen to television reports of the killing of a police chief in Greenland, N.H. last week.

"I had to turn the TV off," said Maguire.

Maguire and her family appeared at the Woburn Police station last Friday to accept a Congressional proclamation from U.S. Sen. John Kerry naming the Washington Street post office after her late husband, Woburn patrolman John "Jack" Maguire, who was slain in the line of duty on Dec. 26, 2010.

Asked by a WBZ radio reporter about the ceremony, Mrs. Maguire called the naming of the post office after her husband "a tremendous honor" and thanked "all the people who put this together."

"I'm so proud of him," said Mrs. Maguire. "He did make the ultimate sacrifice."

Asked about the events in Greenland, the small town in New Hampshire where the police chief was reportedly killed during a drug investigation, Mrs. Maguire answered briefly and then had to step back from the podium when she became too emotional.

"It seems like it's never really ending," said Chuck Maguire, Jack's brother. "Last year, there were 152 names on the monument (of fallen officers) in Washington and this year there are 172. How many officers put their lives in harm's way?"

"We'll be reminded of the events of the day after Christmas for the rest of our lives," he added.

Kerry, D-Mass., said he became aware of the dangers of being a police officer when he was with Middlesex District Attorney's office from 1977-79.

"Every day, their families know there may be a legitimate question about whether they're coming back," said Kerry. "The risks are enormous, and unfortunately, with drugs and crime, things get even more challenging."

The formal ceremony to name the post office after Officer Maguire will be held on April 29. Kerry will be out of the country that day, so he appeared in Woburn on Friday to personally hand a plaque with a copy of the legislative act naming the post office after Maguire to the officer's family.

A second plaque was given to Police Chief Robert Ferullo and will remain at police headquarters.

"We're extremely grateful for the kind of example that he set," said Kerry.

Maguire was killed while responding to a robbery at Kohl's during a blizzard on Dec. 29, 2010. He exchanged gunfire with career criminal Domenic Cinelli, who was also killed in the shootout.

Three accomplices involved in the robbery are currently awaiting trial.

Maguire was the first Woburn police officer to be shot and killed while in the line of duty.

Mayor Scott Galvin praised the naming of the police station as a "great testament to officer Maguire," and added the gesture "means a lot to the Maguire family and a lot to the city of Woburn."

He also praised the residents of the city supporting Maguire's family in the wake of the officer's murder.

"Woburn is a close-knit community, and we really came together," said Galvin.

Items that will be accepted include, pills, tablets, capsules, cough medicine, creams and salves. Needles and syringes will not be accepted. The program is free.

Penguins
Penguins live in igloos that are cold,
In the Arctic they eat fish we are told.
The dads stay with their eggs,
Holding them with their feet and legs.

Winner Grade 2 -3 Category Ryan Garratt

Owls
The owl lays silently in a tree.
Silently, the mouse creeps slowly on the woodland floor.
On silent wings, the owl flies towards thy mouse, flap, flap, flap... but never heard.
Suddenly the mouse breaks the stillness of the night.
Eeeek! sadly, it is too late.
The owl then flies silently into the night.

Winner Grade 4-5 Category Gianna Misiraca

The Poem of the Bad Dog
Don't want to fetch sticks,
Don't want to sit for my owner,
I steal food from the fridge
And take the printer toner.
I'm the worst dog of all,
I don't follow rules,
I won't do tricks,
Those are for fools.
I'm a really picky dog,
I'll only eat treats,
But I am so loveable
I can't be beat!

Paradox with Legs
You frighten me, so.
I scream, I screech, I squeal
and yet you move not.
You're in the corner waiting to make your move,
I'm running out the door calling for help.
You fearless creature, you.
You wretched beast.
If you were another, I would not mind.
I rather anything but you.
You and your eight limbs to torture society.
I only have passion and hopes for life, and yet you make me go against all I stand for.
My morals twist, my body horrid,
all because of a stupid little spider.

Winner Adult Category Christine Blaisdell

The Zookeeper's Symphony
On a Saturday night, when the zookeeper's keys
Have locked the front gates with a click and a squeeze,
The hippos let go a most watery moan
And the toucans catch hold of the rich overtone.
The primates percuss, snapping fingers and toes,
While the elephant inhales and lifts its great nose.
In the dim light of a thin crescent moon,
A trill, a crescendo, a riotous tune
The peacocks conduct with an arrogant flare,
Coaxing a growl from the lone polar bear.
The zebras create a fine washboard effect
Rubbing their stripes side to side, neck to neck.
A smart pair of meerkats barks up the scale;
A young leopard whines while chasing its tail.
Up on the high ground, some old mountain goats
Bleat several sweet bars of staccato notes.
Then, an African lion adds a deep roar
To the rippling sounds of the sleepy sloth's snore.
The zookeeper smiles as she hangs up her keys,
Then, humming along, plays the spoons on her knees.

School candidates debate

Marchese said the design, construction and completion of the new high school is the most pressing issue.

"Fifty years ago the building was capable of fitting all of the students, but today in terms of all the number of programs accessible to students, the building is definitely undersized." He also said improvements to all other school buildings and facilities are essential to the process as well.

Masterson also later asked how Wilmington schools compare with other districts in the use of technology and how can WPS improve. While all three candidates admitted that they aren't sure exactly how our schools compare to other districts in terms of technology, they did agree that implementing technology into the curriculum is the right way to go.

"Allowing students to bring technology into the classroom with the teachers permission and actually adding it to the curriculum, I think it's phenomenal," Marchese said. "It allows kids to use the tools that they use at home every day at school." He said he would like to see Wilmington fund iPads or tablets to high school students much like Tewksbury and Burlington school districts have done.

Byrnes supported the use of technology, but was concerned about the funding of it.

"With budgetary constraints I think we can also be more creative and I would be an advocate of finding alternative resources for that funding other than taxes; Taxpayers have given enough," she said.

Mulas again stressed the importance of training and developing the staff to use and teach with technology.

"Success with using technology in classrooms will only be as effective as the teacher that apply them. In order for technology to be successful, our teachers need to be prepared for that," he said. He also said he would like to see advanced students taking virtual classes from other institutions on tablets, hopefully cutting the cost of transportation.

With all of the discussion surrounding technology, Miller asked what the candidates' definitions are for a 21st century education beyond technology.

"I believe a 21st century education is one that continues to inspire our children to learn outside of the classroom, to ask questions and want to learn about the world around us," Byrnes answered.

"Putting real life situations into the classrooms," Marchese said. "It means getting the kids out from behind the desk, working together and working on real life situations." He said the world is constantly changing and that a 21st century education would enforce the idea that a decision made today will affect someone or something tomorrow.

Standardized testing came under fire from all three candidates. Miller stated that according to 2011 MCAS scores for the subgroup of students with disabilities in every grade tested. Ninety percent of grade four English Language Arts students fell into the Needs Improvement/Warning category. Ninety Eight percent of Grade seven math, Ninety Five percent of grade eight math, Ninety Four percent of grade eight science test takers that were in the special education subgroup were in the Needs Improvement or Warning category. Miller asked if the candidates believed WPS is failing special education students and families.

"I've always opposed the MCAS because it tries to make everyone fit into one standard," Marchese said. "I think what we need to do is instead of trying to make everyone fit those standards, we need to move to standards that fit our kids."

"I do think the dept of special ed. needs more financial support," Byrnes said. "They do well with what they have, but I think there is a lot more that needs to go into it because there are not enough hands to address the growing levels of children." She said she would be interested in asking the town to invest some of the surplus funds into special education in the district.

Zuppa asked what the candidates thought of the State possibly dropping the MCAS and moving to a national standard. He also later asked if the district should be forced to use the national standardized test scores to assess teacher performance, tenure and pay.

"Dumbing down the standard going to a national standard I don't think is correct," Marchese said. "To throw away the MCAS and everything we have invested in it over the last ten years is a bad idea. I think what we should do is take a look at the model and maybe modify the model to make it work for what we do here in Massachusetts." He said this is part of a program called Race to the Top, which the Wilmington school district voted against, and Wilmington does not receive funding for its mandates.

"I think it is a ridiculous measure that the government is putting on all of the cities towns. I take offense that the state feels we have to be subjected to their measure of evaluating our teaching staff," Byrnes answered.

"I don't believe standardized scores are a fair way to evaluate teachers or students for that matter," Mulas said.

The panel also brought up the Shawsheen Tech High School budget, which is not subject to proposition 2 ½. Neither Mulas or Byrnes was very familiar with the issue, but Marchese said it was a catch 22 question.

"I think they should be set to a certain limit, a certain budget but you can't necessarily restrain them because they do a lot of other thing outside of what a normal public high school does," Marchese said. "I think they should be capped at some level, but I don't know what that level is because I am not involved with Shawsheen Tech."

Bridge to open in six months

Whipple Road on the Billerica side. However, Tewksbury utilized the bridge more than either community because it links Whipple Road with Brown Street without having to utilize Main Street, which makes for a timely detour - particularly in an emergency situation during a South Fire Station closure. Since the closure, school-busing routes also changed, making lengthy commutes for some of the town's youngest students. Last year though, the towns came together and worked on a new design for the repair of the structure.

Representative Miceli told the Crier that he has been consulting with state officials, but became frustrated by the lack of action at the state level to participate in the repair of the bridge. The flood that caused the closure was so large that MEMA declared an emergency, but state officials declined funding for the repair of this bridge, the lowest crossing over the Shawsheen River in the three towns.

Miceli, the ranking democrat on the Joint Transportation Committee, brought the matter up during the MBTA hearings on Beacon Hill last week, catching the department in a very public moment. Ultimately, Representative Paul Adams, a representative from Senator Finegold's office, as well as Town Managers Michael Caira of Wilmington and Richard Montuori of Tewksbury joined Miceli Friday. Engineers, DPW Superintendents, and Selectmen also joined the group to review the damage. The three towns have already completed design work on bridge repairs, but no financing has been dedicated to the project by any town.

Due to the location of the bridge, Wilmington residents in the area have seen dramatically reduced traffic and effectively enjoying cul-de-sac living, as Wilmington Selectman Mike Champoux quipped during the Town Crier/Chamber of Commerce debate last week.

State officials believe they can open the bridge in just six months, especially since design work has already been completed, and by utilizing already state approved contractors. The bridge will likely be dismantled entirely before being replaced. Cost to the towns, to share, is an estimated $100,000, with an additional $130,000 coming from the State, Miceli told the Crier.

"This has been an issue for which there has been a great demand. I've had a lot of calls, from Tewksbury especially. Last year I was at a Pop Warner game and a mother came up to me and said, 'how much longer do we have to put up with this,'" Miceli said, adding that the closure has led to traffic back ups along alternative routes through Wilmington and a challenge for mutual aid during emergencies since the most direct route is no longer available. "From a safety point of view, this works."

Currently, the towns have not budgeted any state Chapter 90 funds for the project, indeed identifying other priorities for their State Transportation dollars before the recent movement from the state on the bridge. For FY13 Wilmington will receive $765,427.00 in Chapter 90 funds and Tewksbury will receive $929,889.00.

116th Boston Marathon

Many locals withstand the heat

By KAYTI BURT
Sport Correspondent

BOSTON - The 116th Boston Marathon was a record-breaker, but not in the way many runners had hoped. Temperatures pushed into the high 80s on Monday, causing many runners to accept the Boston Athletic Association's (BAA) offer of deferring registration until next year. There was still a significant local contingent that struggled through the heat to cross the finish line, which - in the second-hottest Boston Marathon on record - became the sole goal.

Wilmington Runners

Wilmington had nine runners in the marathon. For at least one of them, Michelle Bryan, 41, there was no question as to whether she would attempt the race.

"I didn't consider deferring, they were going to have to close the race or carry me off the course after all the training and prep," said Bryan Tuesday. "I went out there with the attitude of safety first, so when I got hot, I slowed it down and stayed hydrated."

Bryan crossed the finish line at 7:04:22, making her 1,515th in her age group, 8,953rd in the women's division, and 21,517th overall. It was the mother of three's second marathon, having completed the Hampton Marathon last fall. She was determined to finish and, though the heat may have slowed her down, it didn't stop her.

"It took me a grueling seven hours. Coupled with the heat, I pulled my hamstring at mile 15, which slowed me to a walk," said Bryan. "I was determined to finish. It was amazing crossing the finish line."

For Bryan, it was the people along the way that kept her motivated to fight through the rising temperatures.

"There was literally a cheering section from Hopkinton to Boston, how can you not keep going?" she said, though it was her personal cheerers that made the extra difference. "I had friends and family at different points along the route, and that kept me motivated and seeing them each time brought me to tears."

Tony Carriere, 37, finished the race in 5:09:58, earning him 3,869th place in his division, 11,027th in the men's bracket, and 18,418th overall. The Massachusetts state trooper and U.S. Army Reserve member said he kept his pace slow because of the weather, and the race was very challenging.

"The heat was overwhelming at times; the sun went behind the clouds just once!" said Carriere, who was impressed with the people who came out to support the runners. "The spectators were fantastic several homes along the route had set up hoses and sprinklers to cool the runners off, and the kids with oranges and candy were truly amazing."

For Carriere, the best part of the race was making the turn at the Newton fire station and seeing his wife, Deb, and wife, Noah, cheering him on.

Jill Chisholm, 40, crossed the finish line for the second consecutive year. She ran the 26.2 miles in 4:44:10, earning her 1,163rd place in her age bracket, 6,220th in the women's division, and 16,037th overall.

"Overall, despite the heat, I felt so much stronger physically than I did for last year's race," said Chisholm, echoing others' comments that the heat was unrelenting. "It was pretty scary out there with runners on stretchers, passing out, and vomiting on the side of the road, it made me question a few times if I should even be out there in those conditions."

Chisholm didn't start struggling physically until mile 24, but stuck with it, spurred on by the support of her family and friends, and a number of Wilmington residents she saw along the course.

"I took the final left turn onto Boylston and I was overwhelmed with an incredible sense of pride that I finished my second Boston Marathon, while also setting a personal record in the second hottest Boston Marathon on record," said Chisholm. "I had an amazing day and I'm incredibly proud of my performance despite the brutal conditions we had to endure."

Former Wilmington High School soccer captain Emily Dorrance, 26, crossed the line just under the five hour mark, in 4:54:37. Dorrance, who ran in the marathon last year as well, finished 3,599th in her age group, 6,789th for the women, and 17,203rd overall.

Michael Gautreau, 46, crossed the finish in 4:42:46, earning him 1,875th in his age group, 9,708th for men, 15,840th overall.

Carl Hartford, 27, managed the 26.2 miles in an outstanding 2:45:47, placing him among the top runners of the day and as the fastest runner from Wilmington. Hartford was 113th in his age group, 130th among men, and 141st overall.

Alexis Mastronardi, 37, who was running to raise money for the scholarship memorializing her father (see accompanying story in this week's paper), crossed the finish line 44 seconds past the five hour mark. That was good for 3,704th in her age group, 7,073rd in the women's division, and 17,768th overall.

Thomas Peterson, 47, completed the course in 4:28:31, earning him the 1,697th place in his age group, 8,789th in the men's division, and 13,919th overall.

Forty-seven-year-old Simonetta Piergentili was the top female finisher of the day from Wilmington with a time of 3:10:20. She finished third in her age group of 45 to 49-year-olds, 64th in the women's division, and 1,043rd overall. Piergentili is no stranger to the marathon, having competing in them since 1994 and in the Boston Marathon since 2000. She earned the designation of fastest female runner from Massachusetts in 2005.

Top Finishers

The top runners dealt with temperatures ranging from around 70 at the start of the marathon in Hopkinton to 85 degrees by the time they crossed the finish line in the Back Bay. Other runners fought through temperatures that made it to 89 before the race was finished.

The three top place finishers in both the men's and the women's divisions hailed from Kenya. Wesley Korir, now a permanent resident of the United States, crossed the finish line first, in a staggering two hours, 12 minutes, 40 seconds. The pace was nearly 10 minutes behind last year's record-breaking top finish in 2:03:02, a tangible measure of the day's hot temperatures. The top American finisher in the men's division was Jason Hartmann, of Colorado, who came in fourth.

Sharon Cherop, also of Kenya and last year's third place finisher, crossed the finish line first for the women in 2:31:50. The division was determined by a nail biting sprint to the finish, with Jemima Jelagat Sumgong just two seconds behind Cherop.

Canadian Joshua Cassidy did break a record in the men's wheelchair race division. He crossed the finish at one hour, 18 minutes, and 25 seconds, beating the world record by two seconds. American Shirley Reilly took the gold in the women's wheelchair race.

Beat the heat

Nearly 2,000 of the race's 22,426 participants required some level of medical attention in the tents set up in anticipation of the hot weather and intensity of the race. Roughly 120 were taken to the hospital by ambulance, but only one runner - taken off of the course in Wellesley - was deemed critical. In the days prior to the race, the Boston Athletic Association (BAA) advised inexperienced or ill runners not to compete, offering a deferral to next year's race.

"Only the fittest runners should consider running. The risks that you'll see tomorrow are simply greater than normal," the BAA advised. "You should adopt the attitude that this is not a race; it is an experience."

The BAA made a similar offer two years ago when an Icelandic volcano interrupted air travel across the Atlantic and left many marathoners unable to attend. This time, roughly 4,300 of those registered took the BAA up on their offer, with only 84 percent of those registered making the effort. It was a tough decision for those intending to run, having trained for months for the race. Lisa Maciel, 41, of Tewksbury, was one such runner.

"It was an extremely tough decision for me, especially knowing I've trained hard for the last five months," Maciel wrote to friends and family on her Facebook page. "I did not train to shuffle along and 'just finish' in 88 to 90 degree weather."

Maciel was planning on running the race, her seventh Boston Marathon, as a way to train and re-qualify next year.

"Based on what the weather ended up being today, I think I made the right decision," she said Monday night. "I was training for 3:45 pace and that was not going to happen with the heat." She is already counting down the days until the Chicago Marathon, which she will run in October, and looking forward to completing her seventh Boston Marathon this time next year.

Alexis Mastronardi of Wilmington

Daughter runs in memory of her father

By KAYTI BURT
Sports Correspondent

Thirty-seven-year-old Alexis Mastronardi, of Wilmington, finished her third Boston Marathon in five hours and 44 seconds, but the story behind the race is much longer. It is the story of one man, Alexis' father, and the family that runs marathons to remember him.

John Mastronardi was a special education teacher in the Revere public school system for more than 30 years. After his death in 1994 following a struggle with blood disease, his family could think of no better way to memorialize him than to start a scholarship in his name. For every year since, The John Mastronardi Memorial Scholarship has been awarded to a Revere High School graduate intending to pursue a career in special education every year since 1995.

"He used to run the Boston Marathon," remembers Mastronardi. "He was an avid runner."

Completing the marathon himself several times, John even held Revere's course record for short time when he completed the marathon in 2:56:42 in 1978. The scholarship reflects that love, as well. The funds for the scholarship are raised through the marathon, with someone completing the race for the fund. Last year, it was Mastronardi's cousin, Sarah Russell, of Tewksbury. Russell, an athlete for Tewksbury Memorial High School and Cushing Academy before playing four years with the Boston University women's hockey team. She finished the course in just under five hours last year in honor of her uncle.

"It is something that I've been thinking about doing for a while and so I am very happy to have accomplished my goal," said Russell last year in the Town Crier. "It was also especially rewarding for me that I was able to raise money for a scholarship in memory of my Uncle John."

This year, it was Alexis who wanted to run for her father and nothing - not even soaring temperatures - was going to keep her from that task.

"It was so cool," said Mastronardi. "It felt like he was running with me the whole way."

To train for the race, Mastronardi completed three runs during the week, and one long run during the weekend. As the mother of a five-year-old and Emmanuel College's Associate Athletic Director, it was a struggle to find the time, but she did it, with the help of a very supportive family. Her husband, Jerry Walsh, and daughter, Jaelyn Walsh, would often meet her on her long runs with water and other supplies, and get even more creative with support for her finish.

"I'd get back from a long run and there'd be a sign that said 'Good Job, Mumma,'" said Mastronardi.

Once, Jaelyn and Jerry even set up a mock finish line in front of their house, stringing a rope across her finish. Mastronardi was hoping Jaelyn would be able to run the last two-tenths of the last mile with her, but she was unable to come out on the day of the race because she was sick. She still spent the day tracking her mother at home on the computer with her grandmother.

In addition to her friends and family, who camped out at mile 17, Mastronardi found support from the tens of thousands of strangers who crowded along the 26.2-mile course, that starts in Hopkinton and winds through eight Massachusetts towns and cities before finishing in Copley Square in downtown Boston.

"The crowd support along the way was incredible," she said. "It was there the whole 26 miles." People turned out with everything from hoses to ice cubes to orange slices to encourage the runners.

Though Mastronardi had run the marathon twice before, the most recent time was 12 years ago and she always had someone else to run with. The first time, it was her college roommate. The second time, she had someone to run with her from mile 17 on. This time, she was all by herself, and the hills of Newton seemed near impenetrable. She was particularly nervous about some recurring pains and injuries that cropped up during her months of training and prevented her from competing a planned 22-mile practice run prior to the race. Luckily, come the day of the race, the familiar pains did not cause any problems.

"I thought that these would really hamper me, but they didn't. It was the heat. It was exhausting," said Mastronardi. "It was a hot one."

That fact, perhaps, cannot be overstated. The temperatures, which reached well into the 90s on Monday, were high enough to prompt the Boston Athletic Association (BAA) to advise registered runners who were inexperienced or ill to opt out of the race. The BAA offered registration deferral for those who chose this option, an offer they made two years ago to a smaller contingent when an Icelandic volcano prevented some European marathoners from making the trip.

Despite the challenge the heat presented, Mastronardi thinks it's pretty cool she ran in the second-hottest Boston Marathon on record. And, in some way, the heat connected her to her father. Mastronardi's mother remembers a similarly tough marathon her husband completed. Mastronardi's brother, Michael Mastronardi, who graduates from Coast Guard Boot Camp this coming weekend, would like to do the marathon in the next couple of years for the fund. For Christmas this year, he got his sister an iPod that she could listen to while training and in the race - a bit different from the Walkman she had last time she was training for the Boston Marathon.

"I plan on passing the torch to him," said Mastronardi, not eager to undergo the grueling training process again. After that, there's always Jaelyn, who wore her mother's medal all of Monday night.

"She said, 'Do you think, when I'm 18, I could run it?'" recounted Mastronardi.

Sounds like the family tradition is safe.

Several Track stars qualify for state meet

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Despite falling by a 79-57 score, the Wilmington High School Girls Track-and-Field team came away with some great news in their Middlesex League loss to Stoneham last Wednesday. The trio of Kate Cowden, Kelly Hartsough and Rachel Alatalo all qualified for the state meet in their respective events, which comes a week after two others, Cali Pepper and Michelle Barnes accomplished that feat in the team's first meet.

Cowden became eligible in the discus tossing 89-6.50 which was good for first place as Wilmington swept that event with Kristen Marranzini (76-1) and Melanie Folk (70-8) finished in second and third. Hartsough won the 800 meters with the state qualifying time of 2:27.8 and finally came Alatalo, who finished second in the 400 with a state qualifying time of 60.3 seconds. Pepper finished third in that same event at 65 seconds flat and she also swiped a third in the 200 (29.1). # Oberg notches third victory for UConn

Sport Correspondent

It was a busy week for budding baseball stars. Scott Oberg, of Tewksbury, pitched 4.2 innings, earning the win in UConn's 8-7, 11-inning win against St. John's Sunday afternoon. The red-shirt junior allowed two runs, one earned, on four hits and a walk in the showing, the longest of his career. He lost the lead twice before his teammates battled back offensively, and would manage to strike out three and hold the St. John's batters in the final two innings, bringing his record to 3-0. The team's record stands at 21-16 overall.

Fellow Tewksbury native Pat Devlin batted in three RBIs for the River Hawks in their 7-2 victory over Merrimack last Wednesday night. There was no sign of the injuries that Devlin dealt with earlier in the season as he knocked a double down the left field line in the third to drive in the fourth and fifth runs of the night, and drove in the River Hawks' final run of the night in the eighth with a sacrifice fly to push the team's lead to 7-2.

Devlin also scored on of the team's ten runs in their 10-3 victory against Post University on Monday afternoon. Following an extra-innings 10-8 loss against Merrimack on Tuesday, the team's record fell to 20-14-1 overall, 9-8-1 in the Northeast-10 Conference, and 4-6 in the Northeast Division. Devlin, an outfielder for the team, is hitting .269 for the season with 18 hits.

Freshman Joe Hulme, of Tewksbury, snagged a single in Wentworth's win over Massachusetts Maritime last Thursday. Hulme's hit was one of 11 of the day for the Leopards, who pulled out a 9-5 win in the non-league game. He also contributed two hits, including one RBI, to Wentworth's win over Western New England this past weekend. The team split the doubleheader. Their record stands at 15-13 overall and 6-4 in the Commonwealth Coast Conference.

Hulme plays third base and designator hitter for the team, and was named the league's rookie of the week in March. He is hitting especially well in conference games with a .419 average, and a .333 average overall.

Mike Delponte, of Tewksbury, drove in Bryant University's 13-5 win against Northeastern last Friday. The RBI came in the first, when the senior hit one to right-center, allowing a Bulldog to score from third. The win improved Bryant's record to 21-15, and is ranked fourth in the NEIBA.

Turning to softball, Junior Christina Eringis, of Tewksbury, smacked a pinch hit, three-run homer in the seventh to put Bryant University ahead of Saint Francis in Sunday's match-up. The homer would prove decisive in the 8-7, extra-innings victory. The Bulldogs split the doubleheader with Saint Francis. Currently, their record stands at 13-19 overall.

Salem State's Vikings, headed by coach Leanne Harris, of Wilmington, improved to 22-7 overall and 5-1 in the Massachusetts State Collegiate Athletic Conference after a doubleheader shut-out of Westfield State Monday. Lauren DiCredico, of Tewksbury, hit a two-out double in the first game of a doubleheader at Salem State split with Endicott on April 10. She started the second game, letting in three runs in the first inning before being taken out, but had two hits in the loss.

Senior Lisa Policelli, of Tewksbury, scored on a wild pitch in the second inning of Westfield State's 15-0 win against Framingham Saturday. The Owls swept the doubleheader, bringing their record to 11-14 overall and 4-2 in the MASCAC. Policelli also singled and scored the Owl's first run in an April 14th 7-3 loss to Keene State.

Freshman Ally Greene, of Tewksbury, scored the third and final run of UMass Lowell's first game in a doubleheader at Southern New Hampshire University. Greene reached on an error in the bottom of the third inning in a bunt to the shortstop, and scored when teammate Elyssa Boris doubled to right field. Unfortunately, three runs weren't enough for the River Hawks, who lost the game 3-6. They split the doubleheader with SNHU, coming out on top in the second game 6-5.

Going into Wednesday's game against Merrimack, they stand at 30-13 overall and at 16-9 in the Northeast-10 Conference.

In the track-and-field world, Evan White, of Tewksbury, continued to do his part for the UMass Lowell track and field team. The junior ran his leg of the 4x400 in 47.88, helping his relay team capture the win and moving them up to ninth in the NCAA qualifying list.

Kristen Judge, of Tewksbury, tied UPenn's 18-year-old record for high jump when she cleared 1.75 meters (five feet, 8 inches) in the team's dual against Princeton last Saturday. For more Judge's jump, check out the accompanying story in this week's issue.

Freshman Andrea Caprio's throw of 124-6 was enough to earn the Tewksbury-native second place in javelin for WPI at a tri-meet at Coast Guard with Springfield. WPI also came in second as a team at the meet.

In lacrosse action, Southern New Hampshire University defeated third-seeded Merrimack College and Corey Hamilton, of Tewksbury, finished the game with three caused turnovers for the defensive line. Headed into a Tuesday night game against Bentley, the Penmen were 3-7 overall and 2-3 in the NE-10.

Saturday. The win improves the Cougar's record to 5-4 overall, and 1-1 in league play.

Tewksbury Youth Travel Soccer weekend wrap-up

BU14-2

Tewksbury 6, Reading 0

The Tewksbury BU14-2 soccer team defeated Reading 6-0 in an impressive fashion on Saturday. Due to school vacations, the Redmen played with only 10 players for the entire game. Coaches stressed conservative play and moved the lineup around to work efficiently with only 10 players. At the opening whistle the Redmen managed to gain control of the ball and work it up the field.

At the one minute mark Chris McCabe took a hard shot from the left side that just missed the goal. From there the boys did not look back. Tewksbury controlled the game keeping it mostly in the Reading half, but just couldn't convert their shots into goals.

Finally in the 25th minute, Tewksbury scored their first goal of the day on a Gary Dixon's shot from the left side. This loosened up the play as only four minutes later Ameen Kalkhoran scored a second goal for the Redmen on a rebound from Chris's shot. Ameen scored one minute later again from the left side making it 3-0. The defensive line held Reading to very little offensive pressure and allowed only a couple of shots on our goal.

Starting the second half Tewksbury kept up the pressure and again moved the ball well. The score went to 4-0 when Ameen earned himself a hat-trick by curving a corner kick directly to the near post which rested in the back of the net after bouncing off a Reading defender. A few minutes later Adam Colon made the score 5-0 when he took a strong shot from outside the 18 yard box. After receiving a ball from our defenders who were now playing up the field Adam scored his second goal on a breakaway making the final 6-0 score.

Throughout the game, the Redmen broke up the Reading advances well with Gary Dixon and Cody Souza on the wings playing aggressively and challenging the ball at every turn. Brendan Murray at forward was in on every shot and was drawing defenders inside the box. The back line of Eric Gallant, Jeffrey Carr, and Connor Dane held Reading to only a few real shots on goal and no long attacks that could produce scoring chances. Phillip Borges, while not challenged much during the game, had a solid day in goal.

Tewksbury 0, Chelmsford 0

Tewksbury Boys U14-1 team traveled to Chelmsford this weekend to take on the Chelmsford Lions on their home turf. On a beautiful sunny afternoon, coming off a huge victory from last weekend, the Redmen were pumped up to get their second win of the year. Unfortunately, the story of the day was that of the keepers and the defense.

Despite valiant efforts by the offense of both Tewksbury and Chelmsford, neither team was able to put the ball in the net. Tewksbury goalie, Nick McKeon was the star of the game and made some great saves today when he was called upon. Tewksbury defensemen, John Donovan, Connor MacLean, Alex Froment, Matt Bodini, Alec Diccicchio, and Scottie Callahan played a very strong game.

The Chelmsford keeper was equally strong and made a great save at the last minute, preventing the winning goal. Frustrated to end the game in a 0-0 tie, the Redmen look forward to taking on Dracut next weekend, back in Tewksbury.

Tewksbury 5, Melrose 0

The Tewksbury Boys Under 12-1 team enjoyed a 5-0 win against Melrose. Alex Papageorgiou led the way with the hat trick. He scored at the 9, 28 and 37 minutes marks. The highlight was his corner kick that curled directly into the net. David Gammon started the scoring at the five minute mark with an assist from Alex. Gavin Slattery tucked a nice shot into the far corner from the left side to make it 3-0.

Chris Repucci held the shutout despite some strong shots on net from Melrose in the second half. Max Ducette had a great game as did Drew Fletcher and Connor Power. Brian LeFavre had some good bids on the Melrose goal as well. Nick Borges and Patrick Carlton played tough defense and helped preserve the shutout. David Durante also played well in his defensive assignment.

Tewksbury 2, Wilmington 1

The Tewksbury Boys U10-1 team earned its first victory of the season over a strong Wilmington team 2-1. The first half ended at 0-0, and was a very evenly matched half. Both teams had several scoring opportunities and Tewksbury's goal keeper Kyle Braciska made several outstanding saves to keep Wilmington scoreless. Early in the second half Wilmington scored a goal on a ball that slip passed Tewksbury's defender and goal keeper. A few minutes later Tewksbury's attack was rewarded when a shot by Noah Fleming deflected off a Wilmington player and ended up in the lower left corner of the goal.

Midway through the second half Tewksbury took the lead when Thomas Barinelli gathered a loose ball to the right of Wilmington goal area and fired a shot into the back of the net. Wilmington kept the pressure on for the remainder of the game; and Tewksbury's second half goal keeper Liam Cafferty was stellar, at one point stopping a point blank shot that would have tied the game.

This victory was a true team effort supported by a strong defensive effort from Riley Auth, Sean Cunningham, and Arya Mehrabani; and great ball movement by the forwards Nick Biron, Joey Branchaud, Michael Dell'Orfano, Thomas Barinelli and Noah Fleming. The boys U10-1 team moves to 1-1 in the standings.

GIRLS

GU9-1

Tewksbury 1, Reading 0

The Little Lady Redmen came in to the game hungry for their first win. The first half was controlled by Tewksbury. Goalie BrickWallBrenna Cassidy turned away everything that came her way. Lexi Polimeno scored her first of the season to put the good guys up 1-0. The second half the girls had multiple crosses and breakaways but just couldn't find the back of the net.

Leading the charge on defense was Kayla Paige and Katy Macdonald. Offensive pressure provided by Erin McIntyre, Julie Figucia, Tess Barrett, Alexis Raymond, Lexi Polimeno and Adrianna Niles. What amazes me most about this team is that through nine games in the fall and two games so far this spring, they have posted eight shut outs, six straight dating back to the fall season.

U9-3

Tewksbury 3, Wilmington 1

Undermanned and down a goal, the GU 9-3 Tewksbury team battled back and scored three second-half goals to beat Wilmington 3-1. Hannah Keane buried Tewksbury's first goal mid-way through the second half, and Abby MacAllister quickly followed with two more to secure the win. Marykate Callinan, Emma Fleming, and Kaitlyn Oates played strong offensive games, while Madison Robillard was a stonewall in net.

U10-5

Burlington 5, Tewksbury 1

The Tewksbury GU10-5 Tornados suffered their first loss of the season against Burlington's top U10 team this weekend. Short two players, the remaining 8 Tornados stepped up and delivered a well played game that was not reflected in the final score.

Tewksbury's Allison Indingaro scored the first goal of the game early in the first half with a solo shot to find the back of the Burlington net. Burlington responded quickly, and was able to squeak a low shot into the corner of the net past keeper Jessica Satterfield. Forwards Caitlyn Finnegan, Katherine Marquis, and Catalina Burke kept the pressure on the Burlington defense, but were unable to find the back of the Burlington net.

Late in the first half, Burlington would find what would be Tewksbury's Achilles' heel, capitalizing on a corner kick after an intense battle in front of the Tewksbury net. It would be a harbinger of things to come in the second half. At the end of the first half, Burlington led Tewksbury 2-1, thanks in no small part to the defensive work of fullbacks Isabelle Carleton and Jade Owirka. Both played the entire game without rest.

During the second half, the two teams traded possession of the ball numerous times, but only Burlington would be able to score after finding the weakness in the Tewksbury defense during the first half. For the remainder of the second half, in spite of the intense defensive effort by the Tornados, Burlington was able to score three times, all on corner kicks. Forward Abigail Hansbury came close to scoring at least twice during the second half, but was ultimately unable to penetrate the Burlington defense.

GU12-6

Wilmington 3, Tewksbury 1

The Tewksbury GU12-6 team lost a hard fought game against an aggressive Wilmington team. The Tewksbury girls came out a little sluggish on the field and Wilmington was able to get many scoring opportunities. Leanne Durham was able to snatch up all but one of these attacks early on to keep the game at 1-0.

In the final ten minutes of the 1st half the untamed girls started to energize and off a direct kick by Rachel Figucia was able to tie up the game. However Wilmington was able to net one more before the half was over to take a 2-1 lead.

The second half was a different story as Tewksbury started to put on the pressure and outshot the Wilmington team two to one in the second half. The offensive pressure was put on by Leanne, Rachel, Caitlin Sheehan, Sophia DeMatos, and Rebecca Smith. Defensively Isabella Beyloun, Sarah Boudreau, Rebecca, and Kendall Donahoe all contributed to limiting the Wilmington attack. Daisha Thompson made a few saves and followed up by some picture-perfect punts. Jane Kirby and Julia Strickler also contributed especially in the midfield.

In the end however the shots were just not strong enough and the Wilmington goalie was able to scoop up all scoring chances. With time winding down Wilmington scored the game-clincher for the final tally.

GU14-3

Tewksbury 1, Westford 0

In a hard fought game the Tewksbury Redmen came away with a 1-0 victory on the road against the Westford Grey Ghosts. The girls of Tewksbury came to Westford four players short. The defense played the entire game without any substitution, all the while limiting Westford with very few scoring opportunities. The defense was led by Kaleigh Bishop, Gianna Dell'Orfano, Stephanie McHatton and Amy Glover. Sandra Lantum was solid in net as goalkeeper in helping the Redmen post their second shutout of the season. Midfielders Catherine Ozek, Deirdre Roche and Shealagh Doherty were outstanding in coordinating the offensive attacks with the forwards all the while supporting the defense.

Despite the Redmen controlling more than fifty percent of the first half, the forwards struggled finishing off any of their scoring attempts. Forwards Ashley Antonelli, Emily Stewart, Julianna Wahl, Robin Czarniecki, and Karina Crowley had many opportunities but by the end of the half it was a frustrating 0-0 score.

The second half of play saw the girls from Tewksbury take almost complete control of the game. It wasn't until about fifteen minutes into the second half that Tewksbury finally scored. Karina Crowley, on a pass from Emily Stewart, put a shot past the goalkeeper of Westford for the 1-0 lead. Despite many efforts and a lot of near misses to add to the lead the score remained the same to the end of the game.

Tewksbury 4, Westford 0

The Redmen came out a bit sluggish but picked up the tempo quickly as the forwards started to pound the Westford goalie. They were finally rewarded for the efforts when Emily Sessa bent a corner kick for an unassisted goal to end the half. This is just what the Redmen needed to open the scoring. The first half ended and the Tewksbury defense made up of Victoria Mirabito, Sam Surowiec, Kelly Fortier, and Stephanie Travis kept the ball well away from Gilbert in the first half and Gilbert didn't need to make a save.

In the second half Allison Piricini made a nice pass to Kayla Devlin who set up Sarah Baptista. Sarah kicked a bomb over the goalies head for her first goal of the young season. With the score now 2-0, Gilbert saw a few shots and she made some great saves on all of them.

The game started to get very physical but the Redmen were not going to be intimidated. Tayler Laycox joined the defense and held her ground as they continued to frustrate the Westford offense. Surowiec then moved the ball forward to Ashley Figucia who hit a streaking Madison Wescott to put the Redmen ahead by three. Figucia set up Wescott again who finished strong and the final whistle blew and Gilbert earned her first shut out of the season 4-0.

Wilmington 1, Tewksbury 0

This game was intense from beginning to end, up and down action and the game not being decided until a loose ball off a corner kick trickled into the Tewksbury net with five minutes left to give the hosts a 1-0 lead. Even then, the girls didn't give up and put it in high gear to get the game back. With one minute left one more feverish rush down the field resulted in a ball going off the crossbar to keep the Redmen girls winless.

The defense for Tewksbury was intense in this game. Estelle Penta, Sara Catanzano and Haley Pozzuto who all played the entire game were stellar. Nicole Malfa and Michelle Farraher nailed down the middle and Taylor Donahoe was a physical presence in the middle of the field. Janina Kennedy came up big with some key saves.

U15 Red

Waltham 9, Tewksbury 4

The Tewksbury Boys Lacrosse U15-Red team was faced with missing several key players but still played extremely hard against Waltham U15 White losing by a 9-4 margin.

Tanner Scott held firm in goal providing Tewksbury more opportunities to make a comeback. The team was able to spread their offense between many different players, which is promising sign for future games to come. Beginning the attack was Ryan Flynn who alertly scooped up a loose ball in front of the Waltham net and put Tewksbury on the board. Ryan Sheehan and Luc Surette worked together with some good passing, and Surette beat the opposing goalie to keep the first half attack moving forward.

Tyler Harvey came out strong in the second half and found the back of the net unassisted. Tewksbury was on a roll and cutting the deficit they were faced with. Down defensive players and attackers, the team couldn't close the gap any closer than one more goal. Rounding out the totals for Tewksbury Nick Muise found Sheehan to put the team at 4 goals. When the full team is back together next week, they'll be ready to take on their next opponent.

U15 White

Tewksbury 12, Waltham 1

The Tewksbury Boys Lacrosse U15 White team remains undefeated with their second win of the season against Waltham Red in a 12-1 victory. Tewksbury came out shooting with four goals in the first quarter and five in the second quarter, to take a 9-0 lead at the half.

The offense spread the goals around throughout the game with nine individuals scoring. Goals came from Mark Gorman (3), Grant Callanan (2), and Robbie Blodgett, Troy Carey, TJ Contaloni, Brandon Fernandes, Tyler Harrington, Michael Lirakis and Jack MacMullin each win one goal. Team captains Troy Carey and Michael Larakis helped to keep a lop-sided game in check and ensure everyone had opportunities during the game.

The defense was solid with TJ Contaloni, Tyler Harrington, and Kevin Cooke just shutting down Waltham's offence with goalie Jake Marchant having a nearly perfect game. The only Waltham goal came late in the fourth quarter. Midfielders Grant Callanan, Troy Carey, and Sean Budryk dominated the face-offs with the assistance of their wingmen Ryan Magnusson and Jackson Stone to ensure Tewksbury retained possession of the ball for a majority of the game.

U13 Red

Waltham 7, Tewksbury 6

The Tewksbury BU13 Red team came out flying in the first half and held a 4-1 lead at half over a very good Waltham team. Playing unbelievable goal was Stephen Duquette with many saves throughout the game. The Defensive play of Matthew Andrea, Nicholas Brooks, Ben Connors, Jackson DeRoche, Barrett Hodgson and Jack Sutherland set the pace of the game early, keeping the attack of Waltham in check. The Midfielder play of Michael and Mitchell Andrea (1 goal), Joey Forest, Alec Hirtle (1 goal), Stephen Johnson, Patrick Jollimore, Nick Paolillo (1 goal), Fran Pino and Johnny Spinelli led to may good scoring chances for the offense. Playing attack were Connor Brincklow (3 goals), Sean Callanan, Kyle Grant, Derek Leffler, Shane Murphy and Derek Schumaker.

Waltham made a hard push in the second half and took a one goal lead late into the fourth quarter. Showing no quit, the Tewksbury offense fought back to tie the game at 6-6. In Sudden Death overtime the Tewksbury team had its chance to win the game but good goaltending play by Waltham shut the offense down. The Waltham team scored the game winning goal two minutes into overtime for the win.

The crowds gathered at the Shawsheen fields for this back and forth game. The DC United led by Kellie Schuler, Amanda Broussard, Kaitlyn Smith and Lily Rubin got the crowd jumping out of their seats. Rita Roche led the scoring charge while the great defensive effort of Caterina Tassone, Rhiannon Dymont and Alexa Leone kept the action going. Not to be outdone, the Chicago Fire was also impressive on the offensive side of the ball with great skill being displayed by Janelle Penny, Carmella Thompson and Mackenzie Canning leading to goals by Kaitlyn Maguire, Jessica Delucia, Allison Rebeiro and Madison Mulas. The defense was also showing their skills today with Corinn Flanagan, Kiley Flynn keeping the ball out of their zone for much of the game, while the goal keeping of Emily Fothergill kept this game close.

Boys Second Grade DC United vs Chicago Fire

The crowd was kept on the edge of their seats this week as DC United led by the offensive skills of Brett DeAmbrose, Nick Doyle and Johann Ferrer led to scoring opportunities by Matthew Ardito. The defense was not to be left out of this one either as Gavin Erickson, Jack Farrell, Shane Costello and Brian Gargan kept the ball out of their zone for much of the game.

On the other side of the ball for the Chicago Fire was an incredible offensive performance by Andrew Stokes, Michael Broderick, and Cameron Eich while goals scored by Evan Lovine and Christian O'Neal got the Fire on the board. With a rock solid defensive stand led by Charlie Gardner, Xavier Airoso, and Charlie Boudreau the Fire was never out of this game. The keeper play of Joey Dynan could only be classified as awesome.

NE Revolution vs Chivas USA

If you missed this match Saturday at the Shawsheen fields you missed one of the best games of the season. The Revolution, led by the offensive skills of Anay Gandhi, AJ Lavigne, Michael Lee and Nicholas DiNatale were on display, as the scoring opportunities were finished off by Liam Dwyer and Joey McLaren. Not to be left out, the defense showed it's skills with John Rhind, Matt Vinal, Jay Zannelli and Joey Zuccola leading a defensive stand while the tandem of Victor Che and Michael Moody made some incredible saves in net.

Sheriff Koutoujian reflects on past year and looks to the future

Middlesex County Sheriff talks about getting the department back in the right direction

By PAUL FEELY

Middlesex County Sheriff Peter Koutoujian has finished his first year in office, following an appointment by Gov. Deval Patrick last January, but you won't find him at any anniversary parties marking the milestone.

Koutoujian, who was appointed following the resignation of the late Sheriff James DiPaola, has been almost too busy to notice a year has passed since he first addressed a department in distress.

"It went very fast," said Koutoujian, referring to his first 12 months on the job. "I love it."

The Middlesex Sheriff's Office, established in 1692, is one of the oldest law enforcement agencies in the United States. Entrusted with full law enforcement capabilities, the Middlesex Sheriff's Office provides care, custody and control of both sentenced inmates and pre-trial detainees.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY SHERIFF PETER KOUTOUJIAN SPEAKS (left) at the 14th graduation of the Inmate Culinary Arts Program at the Billerica House of Correction. Also at the ceremony, nine inmates who recently earned their General Education Diploma were recognized for their dedication to their education. Koutoujian, who was appointed Sheriff last January, recently kicked off his election campaign for a six year term.

Sheriff following a difficult time for the department.

Former sheriff DiPaola ended his career amidst scandals in November 2010, when he allegedly attempted to exploit a loophole in his pension that would allow him to collect a pension and a salary simultaneously. He also faced allegations of improper financing for his campaigns. DiPaola committed suicide later that same November.

Massachusetts Attorney General Martha Coakley closed an investigation into the Middlesex Sheriff's Office under DiPaola without any criminal charges.

Despite the controversy, Koutoujian said he didn't hesitate when it came to taking the job.

"In a nutshell, it was all about bringing the Middlesex Sheriff's Department, a department with a very long and proud history, back from a very difficult time," said Koutoujian. "It wasn't as difficult for me, because I knew what I was going into. I was excited for the opportunity. But for the rest of the department, some knew a lot about me, some knew a little about me, some had never heard of me at all. I think for some coming into a situation like that, there is the temptation to tear the department apart for political expediency. When it is unnecessary it is wrong. I knew the department was a good department, and we just needed to get back in the right direction."

Koutoujian's department has historical ties to the Middlesex East readership area.

According to information provided by the department, Major Loammi Baldwin, commander of three companies of Minutemen from the city of Woburn, executed the first and most costly ambush of the British "Redcoats" as the British began their 15-mile retreat all the way back to Boston.

The location of this skirmish on the Lincoln-Concord line is known as "the Bloody Angle" since it was there that the largest ratio of British to American casualties occurred that day. In addition, eight out of 10 commanding officers of the British forward units were killed or wounded there by and crime prevention programs.

The department serves the 54 cities and towns that make up Middlesex County, including the following Middlesex East communities:

Reading
Wakefield
Woburn
Winchester
Burlington
Stoneham
N. Reading
Wilmington
Tewksbury

"There's no such thing as a typical day, except for the crises," said Koutoujian. "It's a tremendously challenging job. We have about 1,400 inmates, we have about 800 employees, many of whom are correction officers."

There are 800 men and women who perform the daily activities at the Middlesex Sheriff's Office. These officers are responsible for the well-being of the, on average, more than 1,400 individuals housed within the department's facilities.

Koutoujian took over as

Movie Reviews

"THE CABIN IN THE WOODS" ENTERTAINING

"THE CABIN IN THE WOODS" has taken the horror genre and turned it on its head. This is an entertaining and wholly original genre hybrid film that has more than a few tricks up its sleeves.

"THE CABIN IN THE WOODS"
GRADE: **

Writer Joss Whedon has taken the horror genre and turned it on its head in his latest, "The Cabin in the Woods". Directed by Drew Goddard and co-written with Whedon, "Cabin" is an entertaining and wholly original genre hybrid film that, although it may appear to be a typical slasher flick at first sight, has more than a few tricks up its sleeves.

Taking a cue from classic horror movies like "The Evil Dead," the story is pretty simple: five college friends - Curt (Chris Hemsworth), Dana (Kristen Connolly), Holden (Jesse Williams), Jules (Anna Hutchison) and Marty (Fran Kranz) - drive to a cabin in the middle of nowhere (it can't even be located on GPS) for a week-end of fun. But what starts out as an innocent retreat quickly devolves into something straight out of a nightmare when a family of red-neck pain-worshippers is inadvertently resurrected from the dead, thrusting the friends into a fight for their lives.

What the group doesn't realize, however, is that the whole thing is being orchestrated by a third party with ulterior motives, although to say any more would ruin the surprise, and take the fun out of experiencing it for yourself.

Whedon and Goddard's script playfully toys with the laws of horror movies much like Wes Craven's "Scream." Though it does have some moments of genuine terror, the duo keeps the mood surprisingly light for the most part with broad strokes of humor.

The cast of victims is also much better than your average slasher film. Fran Kranz is a standout as the comic relief of the gang.

But the real stars of the film are Richard Jenkins and Bradley Whitford, in a pair of hilarious roles as the guys pulling the strings behind all the death and horror at the cabin. They are responsible for many of the movie's biggest laughs, and their roles make "The Cabin in the Woods" such a unique film.

The movie goes a bit off the rails in the final act after its big reveal, but overall yields a very crowd-pleasing result.

"AMERICAN REUNION"
GRADE: **

In the comedy 'American Reunion', all the 'American Pie' characters we met a little more than a decade ago return to East Great Falls for their high-school reunion. In one long-overdue weekend, they will discover what has changed, who hasn't and that time and distance can't break the bonds of friendship.

For those unfamiliar with the film 'American Pie', it was set in the summer of 1999 when four small-town Michigan boys began a quest to lose their virginity. In the years that have passed, Jim and Michelle married while Kevin and Vicky said goodbye. Oz and Heather grew apart, but Finch still longs for Stifler's mom. Now these lifelong friends have come home as adults to reminisce about, and get inspired by, the hormonal teens who launched the original hit film.

Jim's marriage to former band geek Michelle (Alyson Hannigan) has cooled since 2003's "American Wedding." With a preschool age son, they have no romantic time unless it is 'alone time'.

But their relationship is still healthier than any Stifler (the manic Seann William Scott) is involved in. Jim accuses the man-child of being "trapped in the past," but throughout the reunion weekend, they all discover that previous relationships come back to haunt or tempt them.

Jon Hurwitz and Hayden Schlossberg, the writer/director team responsible for creating "Harold & Kumar," try hard to come up with fresh predicaments. Jim finds himself in several scenes involving unwanted nudity that are laugh-out-loud funny.

In one he attempts to return a passed-out, barely legal neighbor to her parents' house. In another, he awakens naked in the kitchen, then attempts to cover himself with a see-through skillet lid.

The cast members have no trouble falling back into their respective roles. There is a camaraderie among the group that comes across clearly on the screen. Characters include Oz, now a famous sportscaster (Chris Klein), globe-trekking intellectual Finch (Eddie Kaye Thomas) and boring, married Kevin (Thomas Ian Nicholas).

"American Reunion" emphatically confirms that nostalgia for the '90s is building. The 'American Pie' gang are constantly confused by things like Facebook, YouTube, reality TV and mobile phones.

If you are a fan of the original, it's fun catching up with these old friends. If not, it's still a funny, raunchy comedy.

"WRATH OF THE TITANS"
GRADE: **

The sequel to "The Clash of the Titans" is an improvement over the first one, but that isn't saying a whole lot.

The plot of this new version, made for 3D viewing, is as follows:

A decade after his heroic defeat of the monstrous Kraken, Perseus-the demigod son of Zeus-is attempting to live a quieter life as a village fisherman and the sole parent to his 10-year old son, Helius.

"Wrath of the Titans" is considerably better looking than its predecessor, but it still makes little sense storywise.

The actual story is incoherent, and the choppy paced movie is too short to develop the characters. That's a disservice to actors like Neeson and Fiennes, who look embarrassed to be here.

"Wrath" does have sharper 3-D than "Clash" did; it's nowhere near as murky and dark as its predecessor. But that's not enough to save it.

'SYNTHETIC FIELD CUSTODIAN' IN WINCHESTER-SAY, WHAT?

"The saying 'more money, more problems' might actually extend to Winchester for the first time since the recession hit," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"With the new fee structure in place for using the town's playing fields, the Field Management Committee is sponsoring two articles at Town Meeting: one for the creation of a revolving fund for the grass fields and one for the creation of a revolving fund for the turf fields. Unfortunately, not everyone is on board.

"Chris Nelson, Recreation Department Director, told the Board of Selectmen that these two accounts were needed to help manage the extra money the committee would be receiving once the fee increases for using the playing fields go into affect. He said they could use the money to create signage and for trash pickup, plus to supplement some capital expenses down the line.

"With the turf account, Nelson said that money could help replace the turf fields since turf has a limited shelf life. It could also be used, he said, to hire a synthetic field custodian...."

"The latter idea, using the money for hirings, didn't sit too well with members of the youth soccer club. They felt that as potentially the largest contributors to these funds, they wanted to make sure the money was used for field maintenance and nothing else.

"Nelson defended his committee and the idea of the revolving funds by saying that a budget would be created outlining where the money goes. He also said that Town Manager Richard Howard would have to approve the funds. With that, and the fact that the selectmen approve the fee structure, the Field Management Committee aren't left alone to charge whatever they want nor use the money however they see fit.

"As Howard said, 'I think the checks and balances are there'..."

"...The matter goes before Town Meeting on Apr. 23 as Articles 21 and 22. It states that any left over money after the fiscal year ends will not be rolled over into the General Fund, but will remain in the proper account."

FINE FINISH IN BURLINGTON

"The hiring of John Petrin as the new town administrator became official ... as the Board of Selectmen and Petrin agreed on a contract," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"After unanimously approving the pact, negotiated in an executive session earlier in the evening, members of the board signed the document.

"Petrin is currently town manager in Ashland and he will give notice to that community ... His official start date in Burlington will be June 18...

"In later comments, Selectmen Chairman Walter Zenkin said the contract negotiations were 'very easy, very fair'..."

"Zenkin went on to say he expects Petrin will be a solid fit for the town...."

PEERLESS IN WILMINGTON

"Superintendent of Schools Joanne Benton received unanimous support in her annual review from the seven School Committee members ...," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"...School Committee members evaluated Benton on nine different categories: relationship with the School Committee, climate and culture, student learning, adult learning, technology, finance and budget, facilities and space utilization, personnel management, and communications and public relations.

"Benton received high marks from all Committee members in each area of evaluation ...

"...The overall consensus was the Superintendent has done a great job in all aspects of her job and is an indispensable component of the Wilmington Public Schools."

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

Canadian Astronaut Robert Thirsk took what NHL Hall-of-Famer's jersey and Stanley Cup ring with him on a shuttle mission??

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•JUNIOR SPRINTER EVAN WHITE

(TEWKSBURY, MASS.) was named UMass Lowell's Northwestern Mutual Athlete of the Week Tuesday after leading the men's track and field team at the George Davis Invitational at UMass Lowell.

Also named the Northeast-10 Conference Men's Track Athlete of the Week, White won both the 100 meter dash and ran the anchor leg for the 4X400 meter relay team.

White ran the 100 meter dash with a time of 10.62 seconds and the last leg of the 4x400 meter relay team that finished with a time of 3.14.18.

White is the son of the late Geraldine White of Tewksbury, Mass. and Randy White of Stoughton, Mass.

•UMass Lowell won two events and placed first among Division II and III athletes/teams in four others at the George Davis Track and Field Invitational at the Cushing Field Complex.

The non-scoring Invitational showcased teams from all three NCAA Divisions as well as many postgraduate independent athletes.

Freshman Alexis Kitsakos (Merrimack, Mass.) won the 400 meters in 59.43 seconds, edging Julie McGilpin of the University of Vermont, the runner-up in 60.04.

Kitsakos also ran a leg on UMass Lowell's 4X100 'B' team, which placed fourth in 50.65 seconds. Joining Kitsakos were freshman Shaniece Cola (Lowell, Mass.), Kim Gabriele (Raynham, Mass.) and Rachel Surrette (Haverhill, Mass.).

SOPHOMORE STEPHANIE WALKER (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) took seventh in the 100 meter hurdles in 15.71. Jones earned a personal best in the triple jump with a distance of 36' 5.75", good for fifth place.

Sophomores Candace Greene (Annapolis, Md.) and Samantha Otten (Ashland, Mass.) also led UMass Lowell's field contingent. Greene placed second in the shot put with a throw of 44' 0.75", just behind for UMass Lowell standout and 2010 NCAA Champion Jacqui Barrett, who threw 46' 10.75".

Other results included that of senior Maddy Bissailon (Merrimack, Mass.) placed sixth in the discus (118' 11.0"); and SENIOR MARYANN FORD (WOBURN, MASS.) who placed sixth (second) in the 5,000 meters in 19:38.37, just ahead of freshman Bridget Meehan (Nashua, N.H.), who placed seventh (third) in 19:51.01.

•Need some help with the trivia question? They build statues to players like him.

•The UMass Lowell women's rowing varsity four 'A' and 'B' teams defeated Mass Maritime in the first edition of the 2012 River Hawk Racing Series on the Merrimack River.

The UMass Lowell 'A' team raced the 2,000 meter course in 8 minutes, 3.0 seconds to edge out UMass Lowell's 'B' team (8:19) and Mass Maritime (8:54).

Leading the UMass Lowell 'A' team was senior coxswain Irene Cassidy (Methuen, Mass.), seniors Amanda Murray (West Newbury, Mass.) and Kerry Siebert (Byfield, Mass.); and freshmen Rachel Piela (Amherst, Mass.) and Jenna Bueno (Methuen, Mass.).

Leading the 'B' squad was sophomore coxswain Rachel Paquette (Dracut, Mass.); juniors Kim Haskins (Taunton, Mass.) and Melinda Neale (Plaistow, N.H.); and sophomores Bridget Mahoney (Dracut, Mass.) and Megan McLaughlin (Haverhill, Mass.).

"My squad 'plays nicely' together, but they need to understand that real progress comes from absolutely challenging each other every day, every stroke," said head coach Veronika Platzer. "They are starting to do that and it's just what we need to go into next week's extremely competitive races against the top New England programs."

In the novice race, UMass Lowell's Novice Four 'A' team completed the course in 8:22, to defeat the River Hawk 'B' team (8:33). The Novice 'A' team included Paquette, Bueno, freshmen Erinn McLaughlin (Lowell, Mass.) and Meredith Swan (Gloucester, Mass.); and SOPHOMORE KATIE JUDD (LYNNFIELD, MASS.).

The 'B' novices were represented by Cassidy, Murray, Piela, Siebert and Haskins.

•Senior pitcher/designated hitter Elyssa Boris (Gardner, Mass.) earned two wins and hit a solo home run in the second game as UMass Lowell defeated Pace University, 6-5 and 2-1, in a Northeast-10 Conference softball double-header at River View Field.

The wins were the eighth and ninth consecutive for UMass Lowell, which improved to 25-8 overall and 13-4 in the NE-10.

Pace slipped to 20-10 overall and 8-8 in the Conference.

Boris batted 3 for 6 two runs on the day while junior 2B Krista MacKenzie (Ipswich, Mass.) went 3 for 7 and drove home the game-winning RBI in the bottom of the seventh inning of game one. Junior CF Ashley Daniels (Medford, Mass.) batted 3 for 4 with three runs and two walks.

In the opener, UMass Lowell carried a 5-0 lead into the seventh inning behind a two-run single from sophomore 3B Ali Ferraro (Kingston, N.Y.) in the second inning and a two-run triple by freshman RF Ariana Darcy (Walkill, N.Y.) in the fifth.

The River Hawks added another run in the sixth when freshman Rachel Bullard (Worcester, Mass.), pinch running for Boris, advanced on a single by junior 1B Bri Mahoney (Billerica, Mass.) and scored on an error.

Pace, however, rallied to knot the score as junior pinch hitter Chelsea Shea came off the bench in the seventh inning with a grand slam to cut the deficit to 5-4.

The blast ended a string of 23.1 scoreless innings from FRESHMAN PITCHER COURTNEY LANFRANCHI (BURLINGTON, MASS.).

The Setters evened the score behind an RBI single to left center by freshman SS Jeane Drury.

Daniels led off the bottom of the seventh with a single and senior SS Meagan Guy (Berlin, Conn.) walked to set up MacKenzie's game-winning hit.

Boris earned the win to improve to 14-4 as she replaced Lanfranchi who went 6.2 innings and surrendered eight hits, four earned runs and three walks while striking out one.

Koutoujian from S-1

Baldwin and his men. In 1780, even before the Revolutionary War was over, Major Loammi Baldwin became the first democratically elected Middlesex Sheriff.

"This office has been historically intertwined with every major event in the forming of this nation," said Koutoujian. "It's a really interesting and amazing office."

After spending more than a decade on Beacon Hill representing the 10th Middlesex District, Koutoujian was appointed Middlesex Sheriff on January 14, 2011 by Governor Deval Patrick.

As a state representative, Koutoujian held several leadership positions, including Chairman of the Joint Committee on Financial Services, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Health and Chairman of the Commission to End Racial and Ethnic Health Disparities. He helped craft the statewide workplace smoking ban and legislation about new school nutrition guidelines. Koutoujian also led efforts for victims rights and suicide prevention.

A lawyer by trade, Koutoujian served as a Middlesex County prosecutor before being elected to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1996. He has worked as an adjunct professor of Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure and Legal Ethics at the Massachusetts School of Law in Andover, and taught a course on American Government at Bentley University in Waltham.

Koutoujian earned his Bachelor of Science Degree in psychology from Bridgewater State University and earned his Juris Doctor from the New England School of Law. He also earned a Masters Degree in Public Affairs from the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He is a lifelong resident of Waltham.

Upon taking office, Koutoujian set about repairing his department's image.

"We assembled a transition team," said Koutoujian. "We asked the state auditor, Suzanne Bump, to conduct an audit of the department. We took some very aggressive steps to ensure public safety."

One area that Koutoujian has made a priority is providing more opportunities for Middlesex county communities to achieve cost savings by using inmate work crews.

"We've undertaken significantly greater efforts providing work crews to area cities and towns," said Koutoujian. "These are the crews you see cleaning up parks, cleaning up roadsides, occasionally you'll see them involved in a painting project, or working to remove graffiti. These are work projects that can provide financial relief to these cities and towns, because if they went out to bid on these projects the cost could be significantly more."

The list below has the amount of money saved per Middlesex East town or city by using the Community Work Program's inmate labor for the calendar year 2011.

Reading: $40,000
Wakefield: $42,000
Woburn: $27,000
Winchester: $70,000
Burlington: $40,000
Stoneham: $40,000
N. Reading: $0 (no jobs done here)
Wilmington: $52,000
Tewksbury: $124,000

Total for these towns for 2011: $435,000

Koutoujian also touted the use that his department's equipment has received by Middlesex East communities over the past year.

"We have a command center, which is only used in a crisis situation," said Koutoujian. "You will see it in a kidnapping or hostage situation, or sometimes in a situation where there is a lost person, you will see it used as a staging area for law enforcement personnel. When Officer DiNapoli was shot recently at Four Corners in Woburn, it was used as a command center and staging area. This equipment is not something you will see in parades."

Koutoujian also touted the benefits of his department's mobile ballistics training unit.

"It is an enclosed unit, where officers fire off live rounds into computer-generated video scenarios. You are able to make decisions in many different scenarios. We have been able to provide this training for many area departments."

Koutoujian said the training came into play recently in Reading, after a woman fired a gun at a man from outside a home, then began walking up a Reading street with the gun in her hand.

"Reading Police Chief Jim Cormier told me that his officers said it was straight out of one of the scenarios they worked through in our simulator, and that the training helped them handle the situation. It's better training than they could get at a firing range."

During this interview Koutoujian also stated he will be seeking re-election to the job this fall, which was first appointed in 1690 and in 1780 became an elected position. He's looking forward to launching several initiatives, including an effort to prevent teen violence, prescription drug abuse and preventing crimes against seniors.

"Make no mistake, I am running for re-election," said Koutoujian. "I want to continue on with the work I have started here."

Koutoujian is expected to speak at Woburn Rotary next Tuesday as part of the Youth in Government exercisers.

Create delicious fish on the grill

Cooking on a grill is not just conducive to making steaks or burgers. Seafood is something that also cooks easily and tastefully over an open fire.

Grillmasters too often shy away from cooking seafood on the grill. They may feel it's too complicated. Although cooking fish on the barbecue requires a little know-how, it tends to be just as easy as cooking traditional barbecue fare once you get the hang of it.

Fileted fish tends to break apart quite easily once it is cooked. If you have reservations about cooking fish on a grill, you may want to start with a thicker cut of fish, or the entire fish itself. Fish steaks are thicker cuts and, though they take longer to cook on the grill, they'll also hold together better than thin, filet slices. Many different types of fish can be cut into steaks, including halibut, salmon, shark, tuna, and more.

Even if the fish you are cooking is thick, there is still a chance of making a mess of it while grilling unless you follow two important rules: Cook on a well-oiled grill, and don't touch the fish too much during cooking. A well-oiled surface is essential to keeping the steak or filet from sticking to the rungs of the grill. Many people like to flip grilled foods several times to check for doneness, but doing so with fish can cause it to flake apart. Instead, leave the fish alone until the edges have become opaque and are just starting to flake apart before you turn it. Then do not handle the fish again until you are ready to take it off the grill.

Cooking directly over the flame is fast, but you also can use non-stick foil and steam the fish within a foil packet. With this method of cooking you can better seal in juices and even top the fish with lemon slices or vegetables so the items cook together. Using a foil packet also helps keep the fish from breaking apart on the grill, and can be a safe method to try if this is your first foray into grilling fish.

Finned fish are not the only types of sea-dwelling creatures that can be cooked on the barbecue. Everything from clams to shrimp can be tossed on the barbecue.

Oysters and clams can be cleaned and placed directly on a well-oiled grill. Simply cook for 3 to 4 minutes until the shells of the oysters and clams open up widely.

Shrimp can be grilled using a seafood basket that keeps the food contained for easy flipping en masse. Otherwise, slide shrimp on kabob skewers or bamboo sticks (soak wood sticks in water before putting on the grill) to cook easily. Shrimp cooks quickly. Check for a pink color after a few minutes so the shrimp don't overcook and become rubbery.

You can also cook lobster or crayfish on the grill. Parboil the lobster inside the house for a few minutes. Then take the lobster out of the pot and dunk into ice water to stop the boiling process. Halve the lobster and brush each side with melted butter. Then place the lobster, meat-side-down, onto the grill. Cook for an additional 5 minutes per side, or until the meat looks opaque in color.

Grilling seafood is nothing to fear. Once you master some of the techniques for success, delicious meals will follow.

Why are women prone to autoimmune diseases?

Autoimmune diseases, such as rheumatoid arthritis or lupus, are more likely to affect women than men. Now researchers are beginning to understand why.

Diseases like lupus, arthritis, multiple sclerosis and psoriasis are caused by a body's natural defense system attacking the body instead of fending off actual illnesses. In August 2011, researchers at National Jewish Health determined that immune system B-cells make autoantibodies that bind to and attack the body's own tissue. The researchers found that high levels of these cells were most notable in older female mice. The findings were presented in the journal Blood.

According to senior author Philippa Marrack, Ph.D., a professor of immunology at National Jewish Health and an investigator of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute, "We believe these cells could be useful in the diagnosis and treatment of autoimmune diseases, and may help us understand general mechanisms underlying autoimmunity."

The B-cells increased as the female mice aged, and they were also present in young and old mice that were most susceptible to autoimmune diseases. Researchers also found elevated levels of these same cells in humans experiencing autoimmune conditions. The cells were present before any antibodies appeared, which leads medical professionals to believe these cells could be instrumental in the early detection of the diseases.

Popularity of eyebrow threading

Visit any spa or salon – or even take a walk through the mall – and there is a good chance you will come across practitioners of eyebrow threading. The popularity of threading has grown so quickly that many people may wonder about its origins and benefits.

Eyebrow threading is an ancient art that is believed to have developed in the Middle East. Threading was part of many different cultural rites of passage. Iranian women would have it done across their entire faces, removing all peach fuzz. Their eyebrows would also be shaped, giving them a precise look. These procedures were generally reserved for women that were about to be married or reach adulthood.

In North America, threading has become more commonplace in recent years – growing from a relatively obscure grooming technique to one popular in many salons.

Threading must be done by an experienced professional. A cotton thread is twisted around the hairs set to be removed and then tugged. Hairs are pulled out at the follicle level. Because entire rows of hairs can be removed at the same time, it is easier to get straight, more distinctive lines than with tweezing.

Threading has many advantages. When handled by an experienced stylist, eyebrow threading is essentially painless and less damaging to the skin than waxing, which tends to pull at the delicate area around the eye. Waxes may cause skin irritation or even burn if improperly applied.

Researchers also found that activating the B-cells required stimulation of TLR7, a cell-surface receptor involved in innate immune responses. TLR7 is located on the X chromosome. Therefore, women, who naturally have two X chromosomes, are at a higher risk than men.

In 2011, National Jewish Health applied for a patent for a process to reduce these B-cells in the hopes of lowering the risk for autoimmune diseases.

There are currently no cures for autoimmune diseases, only treatments that help mitigate symptoms. Research into B-cells might help treat and eventually cure thousands of women currently suffering from autoimmune diseases.

The history of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation

The history of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation dates all the way back to 1740. Back then, the Paris Academy of Sciences officially recommended mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for drowning victims.

However, CPR as we know it today involves more than just mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Chest compressions are now an important part of performing CPR, but it was not until 1891 that Dr. Friedrich Maass performed the first documented chest compression in humans. What's more, the first successful use of external chest compressions in human resuscitation did not occur until 1903. Even then, it was not until more than half a century later that CPR was developed.

In 1960, the American Heart Association began a program to acquaint physicians with close-chest cardiac resuscitation. Three years later, after cardiologist Leonard Scherlis started the American Heart Association's CPR Committee, the association formally endorsed CPR as a means to saving lives. Nowadays, the American Heart Association reports that effective bystander CPR, when provided immediately after sudden cardiac arrest, can double or triple a victim's chance of survival.
